National League To Be Purged

lowing World Series Is Opinion Of Followers Of National Game—Johnson And Dreyfus Advised To Be Silent—New York Scalpers Operating.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The tempest cked up by baseball's newest andal allayed somewhat today but was the opinion of men gathered re for the opening of the world ries tomorrow that it is only a mporary lull.

Few doubt that once the series is er, a man's sized storm is going to ck the National game, and on ery hand today the question was ing asked:

"What will it lead to"?

For the time being, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis is going to devote his time to conducting the orld's series. He is content to ave things stand as they are for e present.

Jimmy O'Connell, the Giants' oung outfielder, has confessed that e sought to bribe Heine Sand, the hiladelphia short stop in the closg days of the National League eason; O'Connell and Cozy Dolan, e Giant coach, have been shunted t of baseball for all time, and on is Judge Landis is willing to rest. ith a deprecatory wave of his nd, he has decided that there is othing to O'Connell's story that rankie Frisch, Pep Young and eorge Kelly, the backbone of the iant team, were "in on the whole ing."

"An abortive attempt was made bribe a ball player to throw a ame" said the judge. "The atempt failed. That is all there is it. Why call off the series?"

This last was the judge's answer Ban Johnson, president of the merican League, and Barney Dreyus, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, oth of whom declared the world eries should have been called off.

The white haired Czar of the game lso had some curt advice for Messrs. ohnson, Dreyfus and others who ave been expressing opinions at andom since the latest storm broke ver the baseball world.

"Now is a good time," observed he judge, "for persons not clothed ith authority in this matter to keep heir shirts on. I'm keeping mine n."

Judge Landis would not say that he investigation into Jimmy O'Conel's story is ended. Nor would he ay that, once the world series is ut of the way, an investigation ill be launched that may provide ensations akin to those that rocked the baseball world in the famous Black Sox" expose.

Questions by the handful were hrown at the judge, wherever he ent today. But he answered few of hem. And those he did choose to nswer were replied to in such enigmatic phrases as this:

"With me an investigation is never ended this side of the grave."

Talk about the scandal is strictly aboo at the Wardman Park Hotel out in the suburbs, where the Giants are quartered. The New York players may be talking about it among themselves but when a newspaperman or an outsider approaches them with a question concerning it they shy off.

John J. Tierny, secretary of the club, who was in charge of the squad on the trip down here yesterday in the absence of Manager McGraw, summed up the players' attitude regarding the scandal thusly:

"Judge Landis exonerated all but the two who have been punished. His statement concerning the affair closes it."

So far as Washington itself is concerned, it is not nearly so worked up about the Giant-Phillies scandal as it is about the series ticket "scandal."

Thousands of capital fans, after waiting 23 years for a pennant winner, have been unable to secure tickets for the series—yet despite this they can walk down Pennsylvania avenue and the seat tickets they were unable to get being flourished in their faces by speculators. The price tags are marked anywhere from $50 to $100. A half dozen of these scalping gentry came from New York, took out municipal licenses as ticket brokers, and went about it all with the thoroughness that has made New York the greatest "speculation" center in the country. Patient, long suffering fandom is paying the price. The tickets are plentiful—among the specs.

Washington is telling Judge Landis about this, too, telling it in rancorous tones.

Again today, as on yesterday, there were long lines of fans at the ball park in a final effort to get some tickets. Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, was given the "razz" every time he appeared.

BANDITS KIDNAP TRUCK DRIVER, MAKE RICH HAUL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tuckahoe, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Police broadcast today a general alarm for six bandits who held up a truck containing a $12,000 cargo of furs, skins and dresses and kidnapped the driver and his assistant. Four of them drove the captives to a lonely road in the suburbs and dumped them out. The other two made off with the truck and its contents.

The truck, owned by Berkowitz Brothers, of Tuckahoe, later was found empty. Samuel Marr was driver of the truck and William Pinkus was his helper. They told police they were on their way from the local headquarters of the company to its New York place of business.

Series Yet May Be Called Off

Commissioner Landis Says if Necessary He Will Stop Series—Is Sure There Are Others in Bribery Scandal.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 3.—That the O'Connell bribery case was not a closed issue and that the investigation would be continued until every single angle investigated and every culprit discovered and barred from organized baseball, was the emphatic statement made by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis today.

The commissioner minced no words and employed no niceties of speech in discussing the situation.

"It is a dirty mess," he declared, "and I would be remiss in my duty if I would permit the thing to die now. I am convinced that there are other guilty parties. Who they may be, I don't know. And right now there is no evidence which would point to them. But I'll find out and when I do they will be cleaned out of baseball without mercy and without compunction."

Two questions were put to the commissioner. The first one was this:

On what evidence did you give Frisch and Young and Kelly a clean bill of health after their names had been mentioned in the O'Connell confession?

The answer was equally direct.

"I accepted their absolute denial as to the truth," he said, "lacking other evidence it was the only thing to do. Implication in a case of this kind in baseball is suicide and I would be unfair to these men and to baseball if I should hold them guilty without definite evidence."

The other question was: "Do you think there were other men implicated, other than O'Connell and Dolan?"

Here again the commissioner was emphatic.

"I certainly do," he replied, "and this case will never be closed until I have uncovered those other guilty ones and barred them forever from baseball."

For a moment the judge smiled. "Don't misunderstand me," he said. "I don't believe that that attempt at bribery was the plot of vicious minds. I think it came from the brain of damned fools." And he added, "that still leaves plenty of leeway for suspicion among baseball men."

The judge was shown a copy of an editorial advocating the abolition of the world series as the best method of combating baseball crookedness.

He grew grave as he read it to the end. Then he pounded the table with clenched fist, and his mouth was drawn to a grim, hard line as he spoke.

"That's a drastic measure," he declared, "but, by God, if is necessary we'll do it. Baseball is bigger than any world series and bigger than any ball player and we're going to keep it that way."

Why Is McGraw In New York?

Question Unanswered at New York National's Offices Today—Rumored McGraw is in Bribery Scandal.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—Why John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, continues to remain in New York, while his team is in Washington warming up for the first world series game Saturday with the Senators, was a question for which there was no answer today at the offices of the New York National's officers.

There it was said McGraw had not yet gone to Washington. As to his whereabouts, activities or probable time of departure there was nothing said.

When the team departed yesterday afternoon and McGraw remained behind, the report spread that the manager's presence here had something to do with the O'Connell-Dolan bribery scandal, although McGraw then insisted it was a closed incident in so far as he was concerned.

Gem Thieves Loot Tuxedo Homes

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—Loot gathered by gem thieves specializing in exclusive country estates was swelled by several thousands today as police conned meagre clues to the robbery of three rich homes.

The millionaire colony at Tuxedo Park received a double visit. Gray Crag, the $1,000,000 home of Forsyth Wickes, was the first place visited. Jewelry and silverware were taken before the prowlers moved on to Mortemar, the home of Mrs. Richard Mortimer, where similar valuables were taken. It was reported that a string of pearls belonging to Countess Di Zollopa, daughter of Stanley Mortimer, was among the missing jewels.

Gems worth $5,000 were taken from the residence of Robert Mallory, Jr., Rye, N. Y., in the third robbery.

Here Comes the Bride and Isn't She Sweet

The groom is probably smiling—why shouldn't he—he and the bride look just too sweet for anything. No picture can do justice to the reality, but the above picture of the bride and groom in "A Womanless Wedding" gives a slight hint of the joys in store for those who attend it next Tuesday or Wednesday evening. The groom needs no introduction. The bride is A. L. Harder, secretary of the Rotary Club.

Jury Convicts Tar Party Leader

Former Sunday School Teacher Faces Prison Term for Participating in Mob Which Tarred and Feathered Maryland Girl.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 3.—Harry Leatherman, former Sunday school teacher, was found guilty in circuit court here today of being the ringleader of the mob which tarred and feathered Dorothy Grandon on Myersville road last July.

Leatherman was found guilty of aiding and abetting Mrs. Mary Shank, one of the confessed leaders of the crowd which attacked the young girl, who had been friendly with Mrs. Shank's husband.

Leatherman was declared not guilty, however, on a count charging him with actually pouring tar and feathers on Dorothy's naked body.

Judge Hamond Urner suspended sentence, announcing the case would be disposed of after twenty other persons indicted with Leatherman were tried.

Leatherman was held under $3,000 bond which was furnished by his father.

Under Maryland law he faces a term of from 18 months to 20 years in prison.

The trial of the other men indicted with Mrs. Shank and Leatherman will be called in court next Wednesday, Storm announced. In the little county jail, two young girls, Dorothy Grandon and her companion, Mabel Mills, rejoiced when they heard the news of the verdict.

"It's my turn to laugh now," Dorothy said. "Harry Leatherman is getting what he deserved. He didn't show me any mercy and I hope he gets the same treatment. Leatherman was having a good time when he brought that mob out to tar and feather me last July and I'm happy he was found guilty."

Fire Department Offers Good Job

The civil service board of this city has decided to hold examinations at the city hall the evenings of October 15, 16 and 17, for the purpose of preparing an eligible list to be submitted to the board of fire commissioners for the purpose of filling vacancies in the fire department.

The civil service board will hold an examination for the position of paid fireman on October 15. Those desiring to take the examination must obtain an application blank from H. L. Van Deusen, secretary of the board.

The civil service board has decided to hold the examination for deputy fire chief on two nights, October 16 and 17. This is done as the fire board desires to promote to deputy chief a member of the paid fire department. The examination will be limited to members of the paid department, and in order to give all the paid firemen a chance to take the examination it will be held on two nights. Applications may be obobtained from the secretary of the civil service board.

Bert Godin, 23, was instantly killed when he fell 130 feet to the stone floor of a vertical shaft at the zinc mine of the Northern Ore Company at Edwards, near here. He was standing on a platform when a hoist, laden with lumber, struck him on the head, causing him to lose his balance.

Won't Surrender Shackle Victim

Police Refuse to Return Girl Who Escaped from George Junior Republic Wearing Shackles—Superintendent Defends Their Use Among Inmates.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Attaches of the George Junior Republic at Freeville were today denied the custody of nineteen year old Ida Stanton, of Astoria, Long Island, alleged shackle victim of that institution. Chief Cadin flatly refused to release the girl and is holding her, pending further investigation of the alleged cruel and inhuman treatment accorded her.

Other new developments appeared today to complicate the case.

Walter W. Nicholson, Syracuse member of the New York State Prison Commission, has asked for a complete and detailed report of the case. Commissioner Nicholson intimated that an investigation of the girl's charges of brutal treatment and solitary confinement might be made by the state.

Miss Beatrice Houghton, social doctor at the Republic, charged by the girl with placing heavy army shackles on her legs for her refusal to perform household tasks, and Miss E. A. Green, another attache of the Republic, who demanded that the girl be turned over to them, have refused to either deny or affirm the girl's story to the police. According to the girl, she was placed in solitary confinement with shackles about her feet with a diet of bread and milk for more than two weeks.

Miss Houghton laughed when the girl's description of her room was read to her. She said: "Miss Stanton's room had all the comforts that our own rooms have."

The girl, her shackles drawn above her knees by a small leather belt, fled the Republic Wednesday night and appealed to the police here to remove the heavy iron bands and chains.

J. B. Kirkland, superintendent of the Republic, today issued a statement from his room in the Ithaca General Hospital, where he underwent an operation Wednesday. He said:

"Shackling of the girl was justified as a disciplinary measure. She has given us considerable trouble during the past three weeks and has frequently become violent and unruly. These shackles used are of the lightest type made and are of easily unlocked that their use has almost been abandoned.

"There are no walls about the George Junior Republic and there are no bars in the windows of the dormitory. Shackles are our only means of holding citizens for punishment."

Democrats Start New York Drive

Davis and Smith Attack Republicans At Madison Square Meeting—Davis Does Not Mention Roosevelt By Name.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 4.—The Democratic drive to capture New York state for national and state tickets moved today with fresh impetus caught in the enthusiastic shoves given last night by John W. Davis, Governor Al. Smith, Mayor John F. Hylan and a crowd of 13,000, in Madison Square Garden.

The old garden again rang with the enthusiasm of the early days of the convention which nominated Davis as the presidential candidate, arraigned the administration for what he termed its "alibi manufacturing."

Davis attacked in turn, Fall, Doheny, Denby and then without mention of Governor Smith's opponent by name, referred to "another one, an assistant secretary of the navy," referring to Theodore Roosevelt, now Republican candidate for governor.

Sensing that much of the demonstration which the program brought out was caused by Governor Smith, Davis struck a popular note when he thanked Smith for his pledged support and offered to take off "coat, vest, collar and tie" to help carry New York for the state Democratic ticket

Davis was touring New Jersey today.

Britons Do Not Want Election

British Liberals and Tories May Support Premier MacDonald Rather Than Force General Election at This Time.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 3.—New signs of wavering in the opposition today brought fresh courage to the Labor ranks. The Liberals, back-tracking on the question of censuring Premier MacDonald's disposition of the Communist cases, now are suggesting an inquiry into the merits of the action, indicating that they do not want to force an election.

It is possible also that the Liberals may find a way to support the Russian treaty, another measure that was to be a gage of battle. This move would defer a Liberal overthrow of the Labor Government several months.

Premier MacDonald, it was believed, may take advantage of his opportunities to demand a vote of confidence on the Communist cases. It would be to the Labor premier's advantage to go to the people with the issue forced by his opponents.

Every one knows just how little the country wants an election at this time. If the onus for the move were thrown on either Tories or Liberals it would be to their great disadvantage.

The Tory press today bitterly denounced the Liberals for backing down, calling the party "a patient ox, bearing a yoke."

The Liberal press comment is exceedingly cautious. It explains the party action on the ground that the Tory vote of censure was "too indefinite."

The premier seems to hold the whip hand. So many crises have been followed by such numerous reversals of policy on the part of his opponets that Laborites are confident of the outcome should an adverse parliamentary expression force an election.

New Voters Need School Statement

Public School Officials Only Persons Authorized to Issue Certificates—Examination is Simple—Where and When to Apply.

The amended education law requires that any person who became qualified to vote on or after January 1, 1922, and who has not already voted at a general election in the state of New York, shall present to the election inspectors certificates of literacy. Under the new law the public school officials are the only authorities to determine the literacy of new voters. A certificate of literacy will be issued to applicants who presents one of the following evidences of literacy:

(a) That they have successfully completed the work prescribed for the 6th grade of the public day schools of the state.

(b) That they have completed a course of study in a day or at an evening public, private or parochial school in this state in English, reading and writing. Such course of study must be the equivalent of the 6th grade of the public elementary school of this state.

A new voter may present as evidence of literacy a certificate or diploma showing that he has completed the work of an approved 8th grade elementary school or a higher school in which English is the language of instruction.

All applicants which cannot submit the evidence named above must successfully pass the New York state regents' literacy test.

For Kingston City Voters.

Every new voter who has successfully completed the sixth grade of the public schools or the equivalent elsewhere should secure a statement to that effect from the principal of his school. On presentation Meagher at the high school on October, 6, 7, 8, 14 and 15, from 7 to 9 p. m., and October 9 and 16 from 7 to 9:30 p. m., a certificate of literacy will be issued without examination.

Any new voter who has not completed the sixth grade must take the literacy test furnished by Principal Meagher at the high school on October 6, 7, 8, 14 and 15 from 7 to 9 p. m., and October 9 and 16 from 7 to 9:30 p. m.

The literacy certificate must be presented at the registration booth when the new voter registers. Registration days are October 10, 11, 17 and 18.

New voters who cannot submit the sixth grade credentials are required to pass a simple test or examination in reading and writing English, and then receive a certificate of literacy.

The examination is short and easy. It requires only a few minutes. It is a simple test of the new voter's ability to read and understand plain English, and to write answers in English in a way that the examiner can understand them. It is not a test in pronunciation, penmanship, grammar or spelling. The questions are based upon a short paragraph printed at the top of the test paper. The questions come right under the paragraph and can be answered in one or two words. In order to answer the questions the new voter first reads the paragraph. The words of the answers can be found in the paragraph itself.

For Voters Outside of Kingston.

Examination of applicants for this certificate of literacy will be conducted at the school house at the time and place indicated below.

Time for voters outside of Kingston between hours of 4 and 5 p. m.

Places:

League Members Hold Securities

Dairymen's League Directors Authorize Treasurer Young To Purchase Third Lot of Certificates—Farmers Show Faith in Association.

Offers by the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association to buy its own certificates of indebtedness, Series "A," maturing in 1927, show that the farmer members are reluctant to part with their securities. The Association is paying 95 per cent of the face value with accrued interest.

Since last June, the board of directors of the Association has made four appropriations amounting to $714,000, to a special sinking fund, created for the purchase of certificates. Thus far securities aggregating only $303,819.36 have been bought.

The certificates represent deductions from monthly milk checks to provide funds for financing and constructing milk plants and for working capital. They bear 6 per cent interest and are payable in five years.

The board if directors has just authorized Chester Young, the treasurer, to purchase a third lot of certificates with serial numbers ending in the digit 3. The time limit for the sale by holders is October 24, 1924. All certificates offered to the Association must be endorsed across the back by the owner.

The first lot purchased was made up of certificates whose serial numbers ended in the digit zero. The time limit expired August 11 and only $175,775.36 worth were offered.

The second lot consisted of certificates with serial numbers ending in the digit 8. The time limit expired September 13 and purchases by the Association amounted to $128,044.

"The fact that members are not turning in their certificates for sale in large numbers is very gratifying," said Treasurere Young. "The Association's announced purchase price is reasonably liberal. Conditions are such that many farmers are hard pressed for money. Many of our members are not taking advantage of the Association's offer which indicates that the Association farmers prefer to collect interest on their securities and realize their face value in 1927, instead of selling now. It shows furthermore that they have faith in their Association and in its plan for cooperative marketing. Our Association wishes to buy the certificates for its sinking fund as a matter of good financing, inasmuch as they are gilt edged securities and pay more interest than we could get elsewhere."

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Oct. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Krom attended the Grahamsville fair one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens entertained friends over the week end.

Festus Yeaple has been painting his house, also a new back porch. His brother Jacob helped do the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schoonmaker of Pine Plains were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant.

Mrs. Martha Sheeley and nieces, Betty and Ruth Dumond, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stokes of the Clove Friday and Saturday of last week.

Mrs. Delilah Yeaple is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alfred Schoonmaker of Pine Plains.

Mrs. E. D. Kortright spent Sunday with Mrs. Julia Steen.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pratt and Mrs. Mason of Hurley were callers at Stanley Steen's on Sunday afternoon.

George Ham has returned home after spending the summer with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ham of Bedford, Conn.

The much needed rain arrived the first part of the week and judging from the severe downpour of water it must have been the belated equinoctial storm.

This Time, Good Yarn Is Told on Scotsman

One good old yarn that is exhumed from time to time, or rather reincarnated, since it appears in a slightly different form, concerns the Scottish land law known as tenure by feu, which consists in the tenant performing certain services, or making certain payments, failure in which may result in forfeiture of the tenancy.

Some time back it was decided to abolish feus on the Sutherland estates, substituting therefor a generous form of lease which would have the effect of making the crofter the owner, in all but name, of the land he tilled.

To his grace's surprise, however, the first Highland farmer to whom the new terms were explained resolutely declined to entertain them.

"But, consider," said the agent, "the rent you will be called upon to pay is merely nominal, and we are giving you a lease of 999 years."

The old man shook his head. "Na, na, time soon rins away," he retorted.

German Film Production

Motion pictures in Germany are enjoying runs of many weeks and the larger ones are being run through successive months, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Consul Rudolf E. Schoenfeld, Berlin. Lack of good films and not their appeal to the fans is given as the reason for the long runs. Germany's production of films has been waning steadily since 1921. In 1922 the total output was 1,221,230 meters, or roundly 85 per cent of the 1921 production. In 1923 the production had dwindled to but 775,783 meters.

I Paid $5

For these powders once
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I was asked to offer women my aids to youth and beauty, and I did. They are, I believe, the greatest in existence, for I searched the world to get them.

Edna Wallace Hopper

Then countless women asked me about powders. I am an actress and a movie star. We in our world care nothing for expense. Anything which adds to our beauty is worth many times it cost. So I have long paid $5 per box, as have others, to obtain the very utmost in a powder. Each lot was made to my order.

Now I have asked the makers to supply these identical powders, in quantites, at prices all could pay. I have agreed to market them to women who desire them. Thus I am able to supply these same powders at 50c and $1. I owe that to the kindness of the makers.

I use a heavy cold-cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It clings and stays. This I call my Youth Cream Powder. But many women like a powder light and fluffy. So I have this powder made in two forms.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply my Youth Cream Powder at $1 and my light Face Powder at 50c. Both come in three shades—white, flesh and brunette.

There may be greater powders in the world, but I have never found them, and I have consulted the greatest experts. I know that anyone who compares them with ordinary powders will be amazed and delighted.

I shall gladly mail you a sample of the kind you want if you will mail this coupon. Please do that now.

WORTH CREATES FOR FORMALITY

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

If one would be distinguished this winter, wear all white, since it is generally agreed that it is to be a season of many, and very high colorings.

Worth, a criterion for formal evening wear, has launched this exquisite gown of white georgette, almost solidly beaded and edged with ermine. It is another one of those graceful models which gains converts to the flare, even among those who have been most insistent on the straightline.

Worth has an international reputation for formal clothes, yet he does not hesitate to sponsor the short, even very short, skirt for evening, as well as for street. Indeed Lanvin, in her usual picturesque period gowns, is the only one of the couture who dares a really long skirt this season,

Pearls, and yet more pearls, and larger ones—this is another edict from Paris. Occasionally they are clasped or alternated with emeralds, or blacks pearls, but the point is, wear pearls, if you would be smart.

Earrings, which were discarded for a bit by the Parisienne, are being worn again—the longer and more spectacular, the better. Choker necklaces or several strings of pearls, bracelets galore and bandeaux, are all accessories which are really necessary to the woman whose lines are cast in formal places. Even white glace gloves and fans must be considered, while one may spend a small fortune in buying evening slippers with jeweled heels, or with lovely buckles. Fortunately, one may also dance in plain satin ones, and excepting for the opera or simpler functions—if there are such—omit gloves, in which case one saves little, since more bracelets are the unfailing rule.

Excels in Strength and Performance

In its admiration of the good Maxwell's ability to outperform anything at anywhere near the price, the American public should remember—

1st.—That no other car in America, regardless of price, excels Maxwell strength and staunchness in proportion to weight and power.

2nd.—That at all vital points, metals and construction are the same as in cars that cost three to four times as much.

3rd.—That in its manufacture, no measures are too costly to protect the owner fully, in person and in pocket.

Those are the precise reasons why the good Maxwell—now under the supervision of Chrysler engineers—stands up and delivers its splendid service at such amazingly low cost.

All Maxwell dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

MOTOR VEHICLE LAW

By Charles A. Harnett
Motor Vehicle Commissioner.

DRIVING LICENSES.

Q.—What is the distinction between a chauffeur's license and an operator's license? When, if ever, must an operator secure a chauffeur's license?

A.—An operator's license entitles the person to drive a motor vehicle belonging to himself or to his immediate family or household. If, however, he drives the vehicle belonging to another for hire, then he must have a chauffeur's license.

Q.—Who shall be considered the members of the immediate family of the owner of a motor vehicle?

A.—The term "member of the immediate family of the owner of a motor vehicle" shall include all members of the owner's household, whether related to him by blood or marriage, his personal servants and employes upon the household premises who may have such owner's permission to use his motor vehicle upon public highways for his personal use. It shall not, however, include any person or persons who shall attempt to operate such motor vehicle upon public highways for hire or for any consideration, direct or indirect.

Q.—May a farm hand who resides upon the premises of the owner of a motor vehicle and is qualified to drive the same, obtain an operator's license?

A.—Yes, if such employe is loaned such motor vehicle by the owner to use the same for such employe's personal use, and not to operate it upon a public highway for hire.

Q.—Who is defined as the owner of a motor vehicle?

A.—The term "owner" not only includes the lawful owner of a motor vehicle, but also any person, firm, association or corporation renting a motor vehicle or having exclusive use thereof, by lease or otherwise, for a period greater than 30 days.

Q.—Must a licensed operator, transporting children to and from a school outside of a city, be licensed as a chauffeur?

A.—No, provided he does not otherwise operate such a vehicle as a chauffeur.

THE TARIFF AND FOOD.

Ever since Calhoun became rancorous and repudiated his protective tariff stand, coming out for free trade, it has been a stock argument of the Democratic party, directed to the urban dwellers, that a protective tariff on farm products increased the cost of living to the city man. This argument, together with a division in Republican ranks, won the Democrats the election in 1912. In 1913 they put their tariff policy into operation, placing practically all farm products on the free list, except a few raised in the south, and fixing others at extremely low duties. Butter, for example, was given 2½c a pound duty. The Democrats promised the city families cheaper foods under their tariff law.

The Bureau of Labor has recently published a study showing retail food prices for the last score of years In 1913 they selected 22 articles consumed on the city man's table, beginning with various kinds of meats, including dairy products and grain products such as flour, cornmeal, and rice, and concluding with sugar, tea, and coffee. With the exceptions of lard, butter, and coffee, every article enumerated was higher in 1914, before the war affected prices, and after the Democratic law had been given a test, than it was in 1913, under the protective tariff.

Beginning with 1921 the Bureau of Labor increased its list to 43 articles, including canned goods, vegetables, fruits, etc. In May, 1921, the Republicans passed the Emergency tariff law, and that law was in full force and effect during the major part of 1922. It placed protective rates on nearly all farm products. A study of this list shows that every one of the 22 articles included in the 1913-14 list was lower in retail price in 1922 than in 1921, while of the additional 21 items, there were slight increases in leg of lamb, vegetable lard substitute, navy beans, onions, canned peas and tomatoes, prunes, and oranges

In 1923 the general Republican tariff law was in effect, which gave farm products ample protective rates. Comparing the list that year with the 1921 list, there were increases in butter, cheese, sugar, coffee, leg of lamb, nut margarine, vegetable lard substitute, navy beans, onions, canned peas and tomatoes, prunes, and oranges, 13 articles, while the remaining 30 showed decreases in every instance except rice and oleomargarine, which remained the same as the 1921 price The analysis is proof that retail prices were in general lower under protection than under free trade.

PHILIPPINES STILL "WET."

Governor General Wood has requested the War Department to notify the American consul at Hong Kong, who has denied bills of health to ships carrying beverage liquors to the Philippines, that the Volstead Act does not apply to those islands. This understanding of the matter which is contrary to general supposition, is based on the fact that the act organizing the Philippine government directs that statutes subsequently adopted "shall not apply to the Philippine Islands, except when they specifically so provide," and the fact that the Volstead Act did not specifically so provide. Therefore the Volstead Act can not "dry" the Philippines and only through the claim that the Eighteenth amendment is sufficient by itself to cover them can anything be accomplished or even attempted. In establishing prohibition for the United States the Eighteenth amendment includes "all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof" and the Supreme Court has held that the term "territory" includes lands and waters "over which the United States claims and exercises dominion and control as a sovereign power."

As this country exercises such sovereignty over the Philippines, the Eighteenth amendment would appear to be at least theoretically in force there, and in 1920 Acting Attorney General Frierson so held. But probably Governor General Wood thinks he has troubles enough without attempting to dry up the Philippines without Volstead aid and against the united protest of the natives, of whom we read that, though temperate drinkers, they are determined to have their liquor, and "until palms and sugar-cane and cocoanuts are prohibited, prohibition with no matter how great a multitude of agents, will be futile as regards them."

CURING NERVOUS AILMENTS.

The great increase in "nervous" cases is alarming thoughtful people and yet the very fact of this increase has caused such deep research work, that now it is possible to expect a "cure" in a percentage of inmates of our asylums

But a bigger thing than that even, is that nervous cases that went on for years, gradually becoming "more queer" to neighbors and family, are now not only enabled to remain out of the asylum, but are actually made useful members of society, in fact become normal in every way. I refer to these cases where the individual feels afraid of "open" places, or "closed" places. He is afraid to walk across a wide open space, unless someone is with him. He is afraid perhaps to go to the theater, or even to church, because the "closeness" may cause him to faint.

Perhaps he has to do a thing a certain way every day, because he feels that if he does it differently that something serious will happen to him.

Sometimes he gets the idea that he is just a little inferior to other people, or to other members of his own family.

The fear of the dark, of the water, of high places, are other common types of this form of trouble.

You see when an individual begins ot have these fears, he naturally doesn't want other people to know about it.

Therefore he tries to avoid all such places and conditions so that there will be less opportunity to display it He avoids people.

And the treatment?

Well, these nerve doctors simply sit down and after assuring themselves that there is no organic trouble, they talk quietly, confidentially to the patient, and get him to try and remember when he first noticed this "fear" or "fears"

The circumstance or circumstances of the first occasion will gradually creep out The doctor then shows him that the cause of his present trouble is because when he was young, weak from illness, or under strong emotion or shock, a certain thing happened. Now any circumstance, the least bit similar, brings on the same fear.

He points out further, that as there is really no "grounds" or cause for his fear, he can easily overcome it.

Accordingly, he is encouraged to walk in open places, or sit in closed places, or in the dark, and so forth, with this thought and knowledge in his mind The cures, even from the fear of impending death, are only a matter of days or weeks.

Another Practical Optimist

The anecdote of the Practical Optimist, which appeared recently in the Companion, reminds a reader of another optimist, an old Western farmer. His house stood on the high bank of the river, but his farm lay in the bottom lands

One spring the river overflowed, and the farm was covered with water to a depth of several feet His nephew went down to call on the old gentleman and found him standing on the bank looking out across the waters that covered his ruined crops. Approaching his uncle, he said, "Well, Uncle Mort, that looks rather bad, don't it?"

But as the old man turned to his nephew there was the customary twinkle in his eyes "Well" he said, "maybe it is bad for my crops, but anyhow it will drown those pesky gophers!"—Youth's Companion.

Squaring the Circle

The immortal Socrates was noted for his quiet humor. It was his nightly custom to foregather with geometricians about a convivial bowl, drawing inspiration from the vintage of Bacchus. Following the end of the tenth round he would rise—for it is written that he always could rise—and address the symposium

"I move," he would say, "that this circle go home and square itself."

And so seriously did the multitude take him that the squaring of the circle grew to be considered impossible; yea, even unto this day.—Life.

Huge New X-Ray

To reduce the cost of treatment and increase its effectiveness, an X-ray tube has been invented which is said to radiate five or six times as many curative rays as ordinary tubes. Thus the time of exposure is cut down. Another process is being perfected to extend the use of the X-rays to internal cancer.

S Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, R V. Johnson, 642 N. BIG MISTAKES MADE SETTING OUT TREES

A lesson in the setting of apple trees has been very forcibly impressed upon me by the inspection of two different orchards, the owners of which have shown me, says a writer in Successful Farming

By the size of the trees one would judge that these two orchards were about the same age. One of them, the owner tells me, was set 35 years ago. In this orchard the trees were set three rods or 49½ feet apart. The owner said when he set it, that it had peaches as fillers, but they had been long since removed.

The trees in this orchard were a very nice shape, and there was ample room to get through with a spray outfit, and they were far enough apart so the sunlight could reach the fruit to color it up properly. This orchard contained about 200 trees, mostly of the Northern Spy, Wolf River and Grimes Golden varieties, but the owner, strange as it may seem, having set and cared for this orchard for 35 years, had not learned the lesson that proper spraying pays big dividends

When asked if he sprayed, he replied yes, but on further questioning, I found out he put on only the dormant and calyx sprays He had not sprayed when the buds were in the pink for the scab, and as a result probably 75 per cent of his apples were topsided with scab.

In the other orchard, mostly Spies and Baldwins, the trees were set about 30 feet apart, and while they had been well cared for, and were nicely headed, the lesson was plain, that they had been set too near together. For trees that were set farther apart they were very well pruned, but the limbs on many of the trees were interlocked with those of the adjoining trees, and it was almost dark under them, so it was impossible for the apples on the lower limbs to color up properly, and it also made spraying most difficult.

Pinching Blackberries by Successful Growers

Pinching the terminal ends of the young shoots of the black raspberries, purple canes and blackberries early in June is considered a good practice by successful growers of bramble fruits

The pinching is done when the shoots are 12 to 18 inches high in the case of black raspberries while purple canes and blackberries are often allowed to grow to 24 to 36 inches

The chief result of pinching is to cause the shoots to send out lateral branches from the buds along the main stem Plants which have been pinched are much lower and more self-supporting. Pinching also keeps the bushes more compact and makes them easier to tend Most growers will find it necessary to go over the patch several times to attain the best results.

Red raspberries are seldom pinched, since it encourages the growth of suckers and causes the shoots to send out weak, spindling laterals.

Different Sprays Used to Protect Apple Crop

Varieties of apples differ greatly in their degree of susceptibility to fungi. Immunity to one fungus, however, does not imply immunity to another. For example, one variety may be very resistant to scab and susceptible to blotch, and another may be resistant to blotch and susceptible to scab. The spraying program can often be adjusted to advantage to meet these differences. For example, Delicious, which is very susceptible to apple scab, should receive all sprays designated as important in the control of this fungus, but since Delicious is very resistant to blotch, the sprays designed primarily for blotch may be omitted While some varieties vary in susceptibility to insect injury, these differences are not great enough to warrant changes in the spray schedule.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

BANCROFT.

The first man to suggest that California be seized by the United States was George Bancroft, the first great American historian, who was born near Worcester, Mass., 124 years ago today. He was the author of the first complete "History of the United States," and was also a great diplomat and statesman—such as the country is sadly lacking these days. He was secretary of the navy under Polk, and to him really belongs the credit for the foundation of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. He died in Washington in 1891, and his body taken to Worcester for burial.

PRINCESS MARGARET TUDOR

Became the wife of James IV of Scotland on January 26, 1503. The girl, who thus became Queen of Scots, was then only 13 years of age, and the oldest daughter of King Henry VII of England.

The ceremony was performed at the Manor of Richmond, but the bridegroom was not among those present, being represented by his proxy, Patrick, Earl of Bothwell. After the ceremony, the child-bride, beautiful, modest, gracious and talented, set out to join her husband in Scotland.

She never reached him as he was slain while leading an army to invade England, thus the plans of her royal father to unite the English and Scotch royal houses for amity was frustrated.

CROSS VS. CRESCENT.

The first great conflict between Christian and Moslem took place on this date in the year 732, on the memorable field of Poitiers. The followers of the prophet had conquered Spain and established a Moorish kingdom on the peninsula, they had crossed the Pyrenees and invaded Gaul, with the purpose of the conquest of Europe, and the absolute overthrow of Christianity. A great army of Frankish and German warriors under Charles Martel ("The Hammer") confronted the Saracens at Poitiers, and here was fought one of the most important battles in all modern history. The conflict raged all day, and for a time the Arabian cavalry almost won the day with their terrific charges. The next day, however, the Moslem hosts were repulsed, and within one hundred years of the death of Mahomet, the tide of his conquests in the west was ended.

Domestic Economist

The story is told of an excellent Manchester woman who frequently invites her friends to tea, but who furnishes her table far from lavishly. When her guests have eaten all the bread and butter and cookies and realize the repast is over, she looks brightly at the empty plates. "Well, now," she says in triumphant tones, "haven't I judged your appetites exactly!"—Boston Transcript.

MONKS HOLD UP PERFUME SUPPLY

Issue Decree Against Killing of Musk Deer.

Washington.—Musk, the most penetrating and already one of the most costly substances used in "fixing" perfumes, may soon be dearer than rare jewels because the lamas of Tsarung in southeast Tibet have issued an edict that hunters caught killing musk deer will have their hands cut off and nailed on the temple doors, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. The bulletin quotes Dr. Joseph Rock, explorer for the society, who recently returned from an expedition to Chinese Tibet.

"The tiny musk deer, due to the perfumers' attempts to satisfy the demands of fashion, is becoming very scarce in this mountainous district, which is the world's single source of highest grade natural musk," says Dr. Rock. "Growing scarcity of the deer led the lamas to restrict hunting. The musk sack, which is about the size of a crab apple, occurs on the belly of the male of the species. Since there are about five females to every male, many must be caught to secure a small quantity of musk. The traps either kill or fatally maim all deer caught so that hunting reduces the number of potential reproducing members of the species very rapidly.

Musk Deer Tiny Creatures.

"The musk deer are very small, approximately the size of a goat. When a male is killed the sack is removed and in its natural state, is wrapped in tin foil and shipped in strong, silk-covered boxes. One representative of a French perfume concern has lived on the border of Tibet for twenty years for the sole purpose of buying musk from native hunters. Even at the source of supply in this remote district, musk is very costly.

"Musk is a necessary element of nearly all high-grade perfumes," continues the bulletin. "Ordinarily the laymen cannot detect it because it is used as a base to carry the more perishable and less penetrating floral perfumes, such as rose, lilac, violet and lily of the valley. The only other source of natural musk is the Altai mountains in mid-Asia, but the product from deer of this range is much inferior to the Tsarung musk. Since this scent has long been one of the essentials of perfume and has always been costly it was one of the first to be manufactured synthetically. But the manufactured grades now available do not measure up to the natural product and are only used in cheaper perfumes. Natural musk is said to be so penetrating and so capable of retaining its strength that an infinitesimal bit will scent a large room for more than two years.

"Despite the lamas' decree with its terrible penalty there will probably be some bootlegging in musk. Increasing scarcity of the musk deer and the edict are expected to combine, however, to send prices sky-high.

"Innumerable flower scents are used by perfumers in their art, but only four animal perfumes are regularly employed. Scarcely could more diverse creatures be conceived than the four represented on the perfumer's shelves; nor more diverse habitats, nor more diverse corners of the earth as source of supply.

"In addition to the musk deer there is the pot-whale of the Indian ocean, which supplies ambergris; the beaver of Canada and Siberia, which supplies castor, and the civet cat of Abyssinia and India, which supplies civet. These animals represent the mountains, the seas, the tropical jungles and Arctic swamps.

Fortunes in Ambergris.

"Ambergris is to the mariner what a huge gold nugget is to a prospector. Its origin is somewhat obscure, but it is a fatty substance believed to be formed in the intestines of the pot-whale. Usually it is found floating in the ocean or cast up on the shore; a piece as large as a man's fist is regarded as a great find. Many an old New England skipper dreamed of finding a piece of ambergris and retiring from his stern calling to a comfortable farm in the New England countryside, for a 'nugget' of ambergris is worth a small fortune.

"Like musk, civet and castor occur in small sacks, but in the latter cases on the bellies of the civet cat and beaver, respectively. The best civet is said to come from Abyssinia and the best castor from Siberia.

"No animal perfume is used by itself. In the natural state the overpowering, concentrated odor is disgusting to most people. Travelers who have witnessed the removal of the scent glands from penned civet cats in Abyssinia describe the atmosphere in the immediate vicinity as hard on occidental noses as the odor of skunk. Perfumers dissolve the natural substance of animal odors and dilute it hundreds of times until the scent is barely observable. This diluted substance, however, works wonders with the floral scents; it not only magnifies their natural fragrance, but also serves to make more permanent perfumes which would become weak with age.

"Some of the best known perfumes contain traces of the animal perfumes. Ambre, bouquet de l'amour, and some of the d'Esterhazy bouquets contain both ambergris and musk. Different formulas of the familiar Jockey Club call for ambergris, civet and musk. Animal perfumes are not used in the various kinds of eau de cologne."

Birth of the Shilling

An Anglo-Saxon coin, worth fivepence, and marked with a cross, to enable it to be broken into four pieces, was known as a "scylling," from the word "skill," to divide; hence comes the modern term shilling.

THREE LITTLE PENGUINS

They were three little penguins. They were very, very small for penguins and they were very cunning.

In the same zoo home with them was a penguin from Africa, bigger than they were but not so big as the Emperor Penguin or the Johnny Penguin or the King Penguin.

The African penguin was better looking than they were perhaps. He wore a black and white suit and their suits were dark grayish-black and were not dressy at all.

But they were pets and they were affectionate, which was more than could be said for the African penguin. He didn't bother much about anyone.

Then, too, in this same zoo home was a flightless bird. He had webbed feet and he swam but he couldn't fly. This bird and these little penguins had come from islands off the coast of South America and these islands had seldom been visited by people.

The flightless bird family had, in all those quiet years, lost the desire to fly, and then they had forgotten how to fly.

He walked about on the rocks or swam in the salt water pond which they had built in the zoo for these creatures. He wriggled his neck about in different positions and looked quite strange, and he was as large as a duck, though he didn't look anything like a duck at all. He looked like himself.

He wore a grayish suit of feathers—very dark, and of course they were wet as he spent so much time in the water.

His wings were by his side, his neck was long, but his eyes were the most remarkable.

You seemed to notice them at once.

The Three Little Penguins.

As soon as you looked at him you noticed the brilliant, startlingly brilliant, color of his eyes. They were of a blue-green color and looked as the sea might look in a warm, tropical country.

He had no fear of anyone. He was quite contented.

But the three little penguins wanted to play. They came up on the rocks and they were delighted as some of their friends came inside their rocky yard and sat upon the rocks which overlooked their pool.

They came up, their flippers moving as they walked, and they walked over to their friends and enjoyed being stroked and petted.

They were fond of people and they were not shy at all. They enjoyed their friends and they spent a great deal of time playing.

They ate fish and they enjoyed themselves immensely. But mostly they enjoyed being petted particularly one who had been named Pinky because of a little pink tinge to his feathers around his face and throat.

Up and down and over the rocks walked the three little penguins. They did not pay much attention to the flightless bird or the African penguin.

They had such a good time by themselves. If they bumped into each other or walked upon one another's feet, no one minded.

They were all so friendly.

Their flippers shook, their little bodies waddled and three nicer little tame, gentle, friendly, playful penguins could not possibly be seen.

They had never known many people, but those they knew they liked.

They had had no reason to think people were other than gentle and kindly and good to animals. And happy they were as their friends came inside to see them and they rubbed up against them and were petted.

Three little penguins in a strange country but among friends who had brought them here and who came to see them every once in a while.

Sometimes a visitor from the outside came to see them and came right in where they were. But such a visitor always seemed to be so friendly, too.

Three little penguins and their cunning ways and their new home! The penguins liked it, and so did the people, that they could see one another.

Japanese Tag

In Japanese tag the players scatter, and the one who is "it" tries to tag some one. The one tagged becomes "it" and must place his hand on the spot where he was tagged, and in this position must try to tag another. He is released from this position only when he succeeds in tagging another, who in turn becomes "it" and must put his hand on the spot on which he was tagged and try to tag some one else. The game continues in this way.

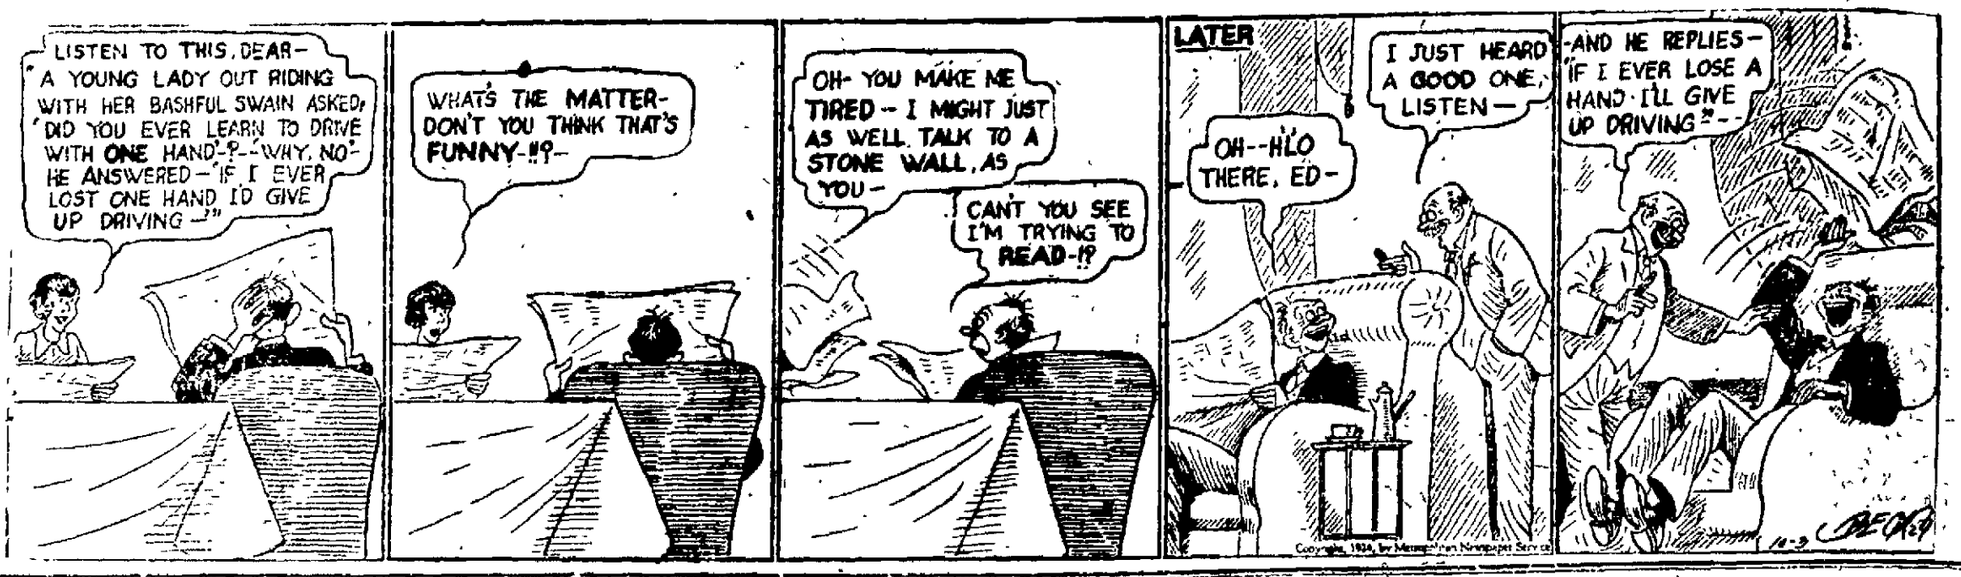
GAS BUGGIES—He's a Different Man Away From Home



The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"There are more persons who worry about matters far beyond altogether to the future than there there are who are anxious to do well the duty of the present moment. If we would simply do always the next thing we should be relieved of all perplexity. The law of divine guidance is step by step."

COOD FOODS

A dainty dessert which is not too filling but most satisfying is

Peach Soufflé.—Take two rounding spoonfuls each of butter and flour mix and cook, one cupful of milk a pinch of salt and one fourth of a cupful of sugar flavoring, a few drops of almond and one cupful of chopped peaches with three egg yolks adding one at a time and beating well then fold in the stiffly beaten whites and pour into a mold; set in hot water and bake half an hour. Serve with peaches finely chopped powdered sugar a little butter, all well mixed and blended with a little almond flavoring.

Prune and Peanut Cake.—Take one half cupful of butter add one cupful of sugar one and three fourths cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder two eggs reserving one white for the filling and one half cupful of milk. Mix and beat well bake in two layers.

Filling.—Boil together one cupful of sugar one half cupful of water until it forms a thread. Pour the hot syrup over the stiffly beaten white of an egg beat until thick then add one half cupful of chopped peanuts, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice and one half cupful of prunes cut into fine pieces. Beat until thick enough to spread.

Watermelon Rind Preserves.—Pare the green skin from the rind of the melon and cut into [illegible] spoonful of alum to [illegible] or more of the pieces [illegible] tender. Drain, then prepare three cupfuls of the melon to two cupfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful each of lemon and crushed ginger and three cupfuls of water. Let stand two hours, add just enough water to start the flow of juice and cook slowly until clear.

Ice cream, when living near a commercial supply, is always an acceptable dessert which may be varied by sauces, nuts and syrups.

RETURNED HOME FROM DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Democratic State Committeeman Col. Louis E. Robbe and Mrs. Mary D. Robbe, both of Gilboa, returned from Syracuse on Saturday, where they went to attend the Democratic state convention. Mrs. Robbe is one of the delegates from Schoharie county. She was also made chairman of the delegation and was elected secretary from the 39th Senatorial District which comprises the counties of Montgomery, Madison, Otsego, and Schoharie. Both Colonel and Mrs. Robbe report a most enjoyable time.

They both attended the rally of the Democratic women held in the Onondaga Hotel on Wednesday evening, September 23, and Mrs. Robbe was one of the guests at a banquet given on the evening of September 24, in the ball room of the new Syracuse hotel in honor of the Associate Chairman of the different counties. There were about 650 women present and speeches were made by the leading Democratic women of the state.

OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE THEME OF ROTARY ADDRESS

Mrs. J. Frank Hull, president of the Dutchess Manufacturing Co. of Poughkeepsie, was the speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday. Her address was witty and inspiring. The topic was "Opportunities for Service," and the point made was that opportunity begins at home and if mind, heart and hand work together plenty of opportunity will be found and the service rendered. Employers owe something more to their employes than fair pay—not free ice water and mushy welfare work—but real things, such as teaching by example the correct attitude toward work.

Correcting One's Mistakes

One cannot too soon forget his errors and misdemeanors; for to dwell upon them is to add to the offense, and repentance and sorrow can only be displaced by somewhat better, and which is as free and original as if they had not been. Check Accidents Or Suffer Harm

State Tax Commissioner Graves Tells Safety Congress Safety Devices to Promote Careful Motoring Must Have More Attention or Industry Will Suffer.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 3.—Executives in the automobile industry were urged today to devote more effort to the establishment of safety devices that will tend to promote more careful operation of motor vehicles, as a means of protecting the industry, in an address by Mark Graves, New York State Tax Commissioner, before the Public Safety Section of the Thirteenth Annual Safety Congress of the National Safety Council, in progress here.

After outlining the effort which New York state is now making, under its new motor vehicle law, to check the annual slaughter of human beings that results from automobile accidents, and pointing out that from twenty-five to thirty thousand police and other peace officers will participate in the enforcement of the new law, Commissioner Graves declared that the best results cannot be obtained without the cooperation of the automobile industry and the motoring public.

The Industry in Danger.

He expressed the belief that if success does not result from the efforts of New York and other states to check automobile accidents, legislation that will be harmful to the automobile industry will follow.

"I make this prediction," he said, "that if when the states have done all they can to correct the dangerous and evil situation which exists, success does not then follow, the industry and the trade and the motoring public will suffer.

"If such a condition develops, legislation inimical to the interests of this great industry—the second in size in this country—will follow.

"It is incumbent upon the executives in this industry to have their research departments address additional effort to safety devices as well as to selling points. I say this fully realizing the good work that has been done in the past.

Agency Must Teach Owner.

"The trade must give more attention to teaching the new owner how to operate a vehicle. An agency which sells a car to a novice and then does not educate him to drive safely is a public menace, and the autoist who, just because he has money enough or credit enough to buy a car, goes out on the highways without sufficient experience in driving, may readily become guilty of unintentional manslaughter."

Commissioner Graves spoke on the subject of "Establishing a Motor Vehicle Bureau for the state of New York." Another speaker on the same program was Dr. Louis I. Dublin, of New York city, noted statistician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who is chairman of the Accidents Statistics Committee of the Public Safety Section of the National Council.

New York State Situation.

Commissioner Graves declared in his address that it is now proposed to place New York state in the front rank of those states which handle the question of automobile accidents in a constructive way.

"New York state," he said, "has come to a proper sense of realization of its obligation concerning the motor vehicle problem. It has been the policy of our state to look upon the motor vehicle as an object of taxation to obtain revenue with which to build good roads. Those in authority viewed the accident situation with complacency. They considered accidents unavoidable and read of them with as little concern as they read the weather reports and reports of marriages and deaths.

"Now, however, the situation is changed. The state realizes that many motor vehicle accidents are preventable and that many people have been unnecessarily killed. It is proposed to place New York state in the front rank of those states which handle this question in a constructive way.

Must Have License to Operate.

"Until day before yesterday, drivers of motor vehicles for the most part were not required to have licenses, bu now we have a law in our state which provides that no person shall operate a motor vehicle unless he or she is licensed to do so.

"Heretofore, the central agency which issued license plates and granted licenses to chauffeurs and operators in New York city had little power to withhold licenses and absolutely none to suspend or revoke them. It is imperative in any licensing program that the issuing authority shall have power to withhold licenses and to suspend and revoke them if necessary.

"The law under which we are now operating became effective on July first, but drivers of motor vehicles were given until October first to obtain their licenses. The task of organizing the department has not been entirely simple because the magnitude of the problem in New York is very great. We have licensed this year one million, four hundred thousand cars, and I anticipate that we now have under license two and one quarter million drivers.

Commencing Safety Work.

"Just the mechanical work of handling that number of transactions is very great, as you know. But when we have performed the mechanical work we are just in position to commence the safety work. We are then ready to undertake to prevent accidents. We expect to do this in the following ways:

"First, we have been withholding license from all those who seemed incompetent or who were known to be careless or reckless drivers.

"Second, it is too much to expect that we have eliminated all of the incompetent drivers in that way. We are now prepared to suspend and revoke licenses. In fact, we have already done that in a few cases. Our plans comprehend the establishment of a safety division in which there will be a complaint bureau.

Investigate Every Complaint.

"Every complaint made to our department will be given that degree of attention which its importance warrants. We shall investigate through our inspection staff every accident which results in a fatality or in serious personal injuries.

"We have classified offenses against the law into three groups, minor, medium and major. As soon as an offense is reported to the department it will be entered against the responsible driver. Three violations of a minor offense, two of a medium and but one of a major will cause investigations, and if the complaints are justified, suspense or revocation will follow.

"Not the least important feature of our plan is that of inaugurating a comprehensive statistical program. We wish to establish such a program as an aid to us in administration, and at the same time produce the information which organizations such as this and the interests here represented, will find useful in their work.

"Our good friend, Dr. Dublin, and the members of his committee, have aided and assisted us in the preparation of our accident report blank. It was not adopted until they had placed their stamp of approval upon it. Moreover, this committee has engaged to further advise and assist us in inaugurating the statistical work which is to be undertaken immediately.

Must Have Facts First.

"Our view is that a maximum of benefit will not flow from our efforts until and unless we know what the facts are. We feel that we must have an accurate tabulation of, not only the number of accidents and the places where they occurred, but also of the causes of the accidents. When the causes are known, then means for their prevention can be devised. In this regard we are adopting as our motto 'What are the facts?'

"To handle this immense problem we have established a central or home office in Albany, and branch offices in New York, Brooklyn, Rochester, Buffalo, Syracuse and Utica. A force of one hundred and seventy-five uniformed inspectors will operate in the field to take action in regard to all of the offenses I have mentioned. They will constitute a special police force and operate entirely in respect of crimes against the motor vehicle law.

Work for Police.

"But other police officers in our state are not relieved fron all duties in this regard. Our state police—numbering more than 450, and city police officers—numbering from 25,000 to 30,000, will also have duties to perform and the aim will be to cordinate in the enforcement of this statute all of the police agencies of the state.

"In the final analysis we must recognize that even though concert of action is obtained by all police agencies, a high degree of success cannot obtain unless the automobile industry or trade and the motoring public cooperate."

SCHOOL DAYS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE RUNNING STREAM

FROM the shaded woods, the granite hills and the running streams leaping in their joy to touch the flowers that line the sod along the way, peers Wisdom with her shining face and modest eyes.

If, while roaming through leafy paths you stop a while, you may hear her voice on the breeze, trying to make plain to you the priceless precepts which have to do with life here and life to come.

She will coyly tell you that the running stream never becomes stagnant; that it is a constant joy to the roaming herds, the feathered flocks and those human bipeds called men, who stop and stoop by the grassy banks to quench their thirst.

And what Wisdom tells you about the crystal stream applies to lazy man, loath to accept the truth, but unable in his perverted logic to move it from its imperishable base.

So, in one way or another, as we reason we find that the man who is ever doing, ever planning and creating, is the man who seldom becomes dull or impure

It is he who is the builder, the great adventurer the prospector in new fields, whose penetrating judgment sways the destinies of dependent men and nations, who soon learn to look upon him as their leader.

Such a man cannot be kept down. He remains bright and luminous by contact and hard rubs against flinty substances and critical tongues.

Unlike the sluggard, he refuses to mope and become stale.

He has an easy politeness in his manners, a luminous eye, a firm grip and a steady step.

He may not be learned in letters, but he knows what to do with them at his first introduction and how to use them to advantage in his particular sphere of usefulness. He is the running stream, watering the soil, turning the wheels of mills and sending down to the seven seas mighty ships, creating wealth for himself and the whole world.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN THE old-fashioned love story, there was always the climax, where the hero "folded the heroine in his arms, at last"; but, nowadays, he does it at FIRST—and all the rest is anti-climax.

"Duty" is what a man always thinks of quite suddenly, when a game, a flirtation, or a woman has begun to pall; conscience is the reaction that follows boredom.

From the present rapid-fire love affairs and divorce-court-to-altar marriages, it looks as though Cupid had thrown away his arrows, and bought a machine gun.

Don't fancy a man is in love with you while he talks about his triumphs—wait until he begins to tell you his troubles.

If there are really microbes in kisses, then perhaps a microbe has more sense than we gave it credit for.

To be popular in this world, all you need to remember is that every woman loves to be looked at and every man loves to be listened to.

Hail the Jazz-boy! His only books are woman's looks—and mercy! What they've taught him!

Men Not Like Bees

Without work, bees and other similar insects die, according to a German entomologist. A bee must have companionship or he will die within five days no matter how much honey he may have on hand.

Mother's Cook Book

"The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while, That costs the least and does the most, Is just a pleasant smile."

GOOD THINGS TO PUT UP

IF THE family is fond of beets the small ones put up in sweet pickle are most attractive and tasty. Take a pint or more of very small beets about the size of a large hickory nut. Cook until tender. Dash cold water over them and remove the skins and pack while hot in sterilized jars; cover with equal parts of vinegar and water, adding a tablespoonful of sugar and one clove to each pint jar. Seal and serve as pickles.

If one does like chutney he usually likes it very much; here is a good reliable recipe:

Chutney.

Take twelve green sour apples, two green peppers, six green tomatoes, four small onions and one cupful of seeded raisins, all well chopped. Boil one quart of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls each of mustard seed and salt, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and two cupfuls of brown sugar. Boil the vinegar, sugar and spices, add the apples and other ingredients and simmer until the apples are soft.

Pickled Onions.

Use small white onions, remove the ends and skins and wash thoroughly. Cover with brine, allowing three-quarters of a cupful of salt to one quart of boiling water; let stand twenty-four hours. Drain off the brine and cover with a new brine half as strong; boil the onions in this for three minutes and then drain. Pack the onions in jars with small strips of red peppers, a few cloves and bits of whole mace; fill the jars with scalding vinegar in which has been boiled one-half cupful of sugar to each two quarts of vinegar. Seal while hot.

Mandon Catsup.

Remove the stem end of a bushel of ripe tomatoes but do not peel; add one quart each of brown sugar, vinegar, one cupful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of mustard, one tablespoonful each of cloves, allspice and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of black pepper and one-fourth teaspoonful of cayenne. Boil slowly, stirring often until reduced one-third, or as thick as desired.

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

7,800 Cars Oversold
Despite Record-breaking Output

Though Nash production is at the highest level ever attained

—still the demand from every section of the country for these new Advanced Six and Special Six models has swept sales to a point so far beyond the best previous mark that unfilled orders total 7,800 cars.

Nothing that we might say could add the weight of a straw to this irrefutable evidence that men and women everywhere do see clearly in these new cars unparalleled excellence and value.

Happily, with increased output unreasonable delay is eliminated for those who act with promptitude in placing orders.

And deliveries will be made on the rotation basis which is fair to all.

In the meantime—October 5th to 12th is national Nash Oversold Week in honor of the extraordinary success of these new models and we are staging a special exhibition.

U. S. GAME LAWS ARE EXPLAINED

Uncle Sam Compiles Bulletin of State Regulations.

Washington, D. C.—With the opening of the hunting season hunters in all parts of the United States are keen to obtain copies of the government bulletin epitomizing the game laws for 1924-25. Officials say that this document bids fair to have the largest circulation of any single government publication. They also say that it contains as much information as could be crowded into its 38 pages, for it includes a summary of the United States laws and regulations, the statutes of all the individual states and the laws of Canada, Newfoundland and Mexico.

No hunter should be without a copy, according to George A. Lawyer, chief United States game warden, because it will not only contribute toward the hunter's own protection but will assist materially in the enforcement of the game laws, a thing in which every true sportsman is interested. Widespread knowledge of the law is held to be worth far more than a multitude of game wardens.

It is estimated that there are about 6,000,000 nimrods in this country. Last year approximately 4,500,000 state licenses to hunt were issued and in addition there are said to be at least a third that number of hunters who are not required to take out licenses because they confine their hunting to their own lands.

No Federal License Required.

No federal license is required at present, but if a bill now pending in the lower house of congress is passed, as officials predict, all hunters of migratory birds will have to obtain permits from the government, for which they will be taxed the sum of $1. The funds created by this fee will be devoted, one-half to the administration and enforcement of the federal game statutes and one-half to the purchase and development of water and marsh areas as feeding grounds for migratory fowl.

The lawful killing of migratory birds began August 16, when the season open for black-bellied and golden plover and yellow legs in the states bordering on the Atlantic and lying north of Chesapeake bay, and for reed birds or rice birds in the states of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. No federal season lasts more than three and a half months and all open seasons for migratory birds close on or before January 31.

One of the most important provisions of the federal law is that which prohibits hunting between sunset and half an hour before sunrise. Hunting from an airplane, from a power or sail boat, or from anything towed by a power or sail boat is forbidden, and no gun that is larger than No. 10 gauge may be used.

No state law can conflict or interfere with the federal statute governing the hunting of migratory birds.

The sale of game is prohibited, everywhere by both federal and state laws. The government has 70 bird and big game reservations on which there is no hunting, with certain minor and unimportant exceptions, and hunting in the national parks is absolutely forbidden.

What Hunters Must Know.

The essential information which a hunter must have includes the dates when seasons open and their length, the hours during which birds may be killed, the bag limits and the means by which game may be taken.

Of the utmost interest to outdoor enthusiasts and others who for years have urged the enactment of appropriate legislation to check the ever-increasing menace to wild life by oil and other forms of pollution which have contaminated our coastal and inland waters, destroyed aquatic life therein, and seriously endangered the public health, is the oil pollution bill which became a law on June 7 last.

This act prohibits any vessel using oil as fuel for the generation of propulsion power or any vessel carrying oil or having oil thereon in excess of that necessary for lubricating purposes from discharging oil, oil sludge or oil refuse into the coastal navigable waters, including all inland navigable waters in which the tide ebbs and flows.

Another new law of interest to hunters, which also became effective June 7, is that which authorizes the acquisition and setting aside as wild life refuge of about 800,000 acres of swamp and low lands along the Mississippi river between Rock Island, Ill., and Wabasha, Minn.

Public sentiment with respect to the observance of the laws protecting wild fowl has changed appreciably within the last few years, officials say. Hunters have learned that instead of interfering with their inalienable rights these laws are in reality safeguarding the sport in which they are interested, and they now see that they have better hunting than they could possibly have were there no restrictions.

Trice Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

Gentlemen:

For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago, I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day.

The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box, and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success,
William Firth, Jr., 56 Volan St.,
Merchantville, N. J.

SAN JUANS ARE ISLES OF PEACE AND PLENTY

Possession of the United States Little Heard of Outside of the Western Coast.

Seattle.—One of the possessions of the United States little heard of in the East is the group of islands known as the San Juans, in northern Puget sound, which came to this country as a result of the decision of a European monarch in 1871, placing the boundary line between Canada and the United States just far enough north to make these islands a part of the state of Washington.

R. M. Dyer, president of the Automobile Club of Washington, gives a description of this group of 172 islands, lying between the mainland of northwest Washington and Vancouver Island Mr Dyer says:

"It almost appears that nature located them to be stepping stones for a gigantic race which with seven-league strides would wander across from Vancouver island to the mainland. They vary in size from 58 square miles to the area of a city lot, or even smaller, some being separated by narrow channels which barely leave room for the passage of small vessels Many are rugged in appearance, little more than massive rocks projecting from the depths of the sound. Others have fertile valleys where contented people live in a sunshine belt surrounded by mountains and seas, and raise fruits almost tropical in their nature. The islands contain good homes, excellent roads and prosperous towns, where delinquent taxes are unknown and no bonded indebtedness exists."

San Juan, Orcas and Lopez, the three largest islands of the group, comprise about three-fourths of the entire area. The most rugged in contour and picturesque in outline is Orcas, which attracts thousands of vacationists to its mountains and beaches every year Mount Constitution, rising to an altitude of 2,200 feet, offers attractive views This mountain, with two lakes, a number of mountain streams and wooded hills, formed part of the estate of Robert Moran, a retired Seattle shipbuilder, who set aside 2,700 acres as a gift to the state of Washington, to be known as Moran State park The islands abound in wild game and bird life, while both fresh and salt water fish are found.

Demand for Tests of Machines Taxes Bureau

Washington.—Demands of private manufacturers of scientific and engineering instruments for the government's official stamp of approval have resulted in an appeal for additional financial support by the bureau of standards, which has just completed the fiscal year with approximately 140,000 tests, more than a hundredfold increase compared with the accomplishments the first year of its existence 22 years ago.

Upon the findings of the bureau depend millions of dollars of expenditures in the world of physical science and engineering. While most of the testing is done for the government, examinations also are made for commercial firms and individuals, more than 40,000 test folders, covering 600,000 such tests, for which a charge is made, having been issued since 1902.

The government work is given preference.

Pointers for Grouse Hunters

You Must Know Your Bird To Hunt Him Successfully—Covers Well Stocked—Some Practical Tips From An Old Grouse Hunter.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 3.—Some practical tips for grouse hunters are given by John J. Farrell, assistant secretary of the Conservation Commission in a radio talk broadcasted from WHAZ Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., in anticipation of the opening of the hunting season. He said:

Grouse shooting is a sport fit for kings. In fact kings do indulge in this sport but they are not compelled to match their wits and skill against the strategy of the birds in the same manner as the American sportsman. These kings occupy shooting boxes, where they are comfortably located and await the coming of the birds, which are driven to them by hired gamekeepers and beaters. Another crew of assistants are kept busy reloading the several guns used by them in slaughtering the game. Bag limits are unknown to kings.

The scarcity of grouse which prevailed in New York State a few years ago was no doubt due to the slaughter of this species prior to the enactment of a law in 1912, which prohibited the sale of all game, the tick infection in 1914, the severe winter of 1917, during which thousands of grouse were trapped under the snow crusts and perished, the lack of cover and the early open season which prevailed and which is even now in force in certain sections of the state.

But the grouse have come back. The cause of this comeback is due to the law prohibiting the sale of game. Mild winters, good nesting seasons, better cooperation of the sportsmen and farmer with the conservation commission, reforestration, poor marksmanship and the late open season now in operation in certain grouse sections of the state.

The open season for taking grouse in New York state varies. The general law provides that grouse may be taken from October 1 to November 15, both inclusive. In the counties of Columbia, Delaware, Dutchess, Greene, Putnam, Rensselaer, Rockland, Sullivan, Orange, Ulster and Westchester, grouse may be taken from October 15, to November 30, both inclusive. Another exception exists on Long Island, where grouse may be taken from November 1 to December 31, both inclusive. The bag limit allows a person to take three grouse or partridge in any one day and fifteen in the season.

My 38 years' experience in studying, and assisting in propagating and protecting the grouse has convinced me that the open season, November 1 to December 31, is the best because conditions afford better protection against slaughter.

In hunting grouse, one should acquaint himself with the habits and haunts of this bird. He should learn the different varieties of food sought by the grouse and the different periods in which they seek it. Such knowledge will be valuable to the hunter in locating the birds.

Early in October the grouse are in broods, on the ground, in sections where the choke cherry, blueberries, blackberries and barberries are to be found. The buckwheat patches and sections where the thorn apple and sumac grow are also frequented by the grouse at this time. Later in the month they will seek the chestnuts and acorns and should the weather be warm and dry, they can be found in sections close to water.

During November they will seek the beechnuts and, if the leaves have fallen, they can be found in the alders and birches feeding on buds. The wild grape after it has been touched with the light frosts is a choice food and the squaw or more commonly called the partridge berry, is also sought by the grouse during this time.

The bud of the apple tree is one of the favored foods of the grouse. The small green leaves which remain on the apple tree after all the others have fallen, possesses the same flavor as the bud and if one will examine the crops of the birds taken he will invariably find it to contain a quantity of these leaves. It is, therefore, natural for the grouse to seek the apple as food and it would be well for the hunter to always hunt out the apple tree section in and about the cove.

Piles of brush where timber has been cut affords wonderful hiding places for the grouse. I have often seen them in such places. I walked on, knowing that they would flush after I had passed. This is only one of the many tricks used by them in their shrewdness against your skill. You have no doubt had this experience. You whirl, throw the gun to your shoulder, shoot, and if you score a miss, you swear and call the bird all the names on the calendar. Forget it. Be a good sport, smile, reload your gun, continue your hunt and remember it is part of the game.

It is claimed the thick leaves protect the grouse. This may be true but let me state that the experienced hunter knows that when the leaves are thick the grouse are found in open sections where food is abundant. The leaves that protect the grouse are those which fall from the trees late in October and early November. They scare the birds, making them wild. The broods break up and the birds take to the trees. When flushed from these trees they are a most difficult object for one's aim.

The light snows of November drive the birds into what old grouse hunters call the "Crazy state." They will then seek the thick hemlocks, spruces and pines for shelter and protection. It is almost impossible to bring one down when flushed from such cover.

In brush shooting one should at all times keep himself informed as to the whereabouts of his companion. Should a grouse flush and fly toward your companion, don't shoot, shout the regular signal of "Mark Mark." Then call to your companion that the bird is heading in his direction. Such action not only avoids accidents but insures good team work. Always look before you shoot.

To be successful in grouse hunting one should adopt system. If you flush a grouse and score a miss, mark the bird down, then follow and flush him again. In following this bird you will often flush others. Shoot and should you again score a miss, mark the bird down but don't follow him, continue your hunt after bird No. 1 until you score a hit or you are outwitted by the bird. Then return to bird No. 2 and flush him again. Try this out, you will profit by it.

All hunters and anglers should remember that hunting in the farmers' woods and fishing in the streams that flow through his lands are privileges. Show your appreciation of these privileges by protecting the farmer, his property and his rights. Never fail to take to task any person you apprehend committing depredations against him. Such an effort on your part will gain the friendship of the farmer and will bring about a better cooperation between him and yourself with the Conservation Commission, which will result in more fish and more game.

In conclusion let me advise all sportsmen to consider themselves game wardens. Violations of the Conservation law apprehended by you should be reported immediately to the nearest regular game protector. Such action on your part will not only protect your own interests but also those of the people at large and will insure better sport.

Bridge Erection Not Within P.S.C.

Public Service Commission Dismissed Application for Directions, Holding That Mid-Hudson River Bridge is Out of its Power.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 2.—Holding that the construction of the proposed mid-Hudson river bridge is not within the jurisdiction of the commission under section 90 of the railroad law, the public service commission Thursday dismissed the application of the bureau of highways of the state department of public works for an order determining the manner in which the bridge should cross the tracks of the New York Central Railroad Company near Poughkeepsie and the West Shore tracks in the town of Lloyd, Ulster county. The bridge is to be used by vehicular traffic, connecting highways on both sides of the river. Construction of the proposed bridge has been provided for by special act of the legislature in 1923, the provisions of which special act are such as to negative any intention that section 90 of the railroad law shall have any application, the commission holds.

Best Adapted Varieties Produce Quality Grapes

"In selecting the varieties to plant in the vineyard, only well known standard vines should be chosen," advises William Pickett, assistant professor of horticulture at Kansas State Agricultural college "Concord is the best known of all grape varieties. It is a rather large, handsome, black grape, ripening about mid-season. There are other varieties of grapes which have better eating quality, but Concord will do well on a wide range of soil types and bears large crops.

"The Worden is another good black grape It ripens a week or ten days earlier than Concord and is of higher quality It does not ship well, but this characteristic is of little importance to the home growers."

Failures With Walnuts

Some French varieties of walnuts bear early, but the English, or Persian varieties often do not bear until six or eight or even ten years of age Again, it has been found that failure to bear is due in some varieties to too great an interval between the catkins or pollen-bearing flowers and the pistil-bearing blossoms, the former shedding all their pollen before the latter are receptive In such cases the remedy lies in planting some other variety for cross pollination

Cluck! Cluck!

A tourist was driving her motor car along a narrow road in Maine, when she noticed a farmer with a yoke of oxen attached to a wagon approaching.

Thinking that the team might turn off at a side road which she was near she stopped the car where the road was widest and waited. Three or four hens gathered around and one sat down in front of the machine.

When the farmer drew near he aimed a toothless grin at the fair driver and a handful of dirt at the hen, saying:

"I'll roust her out for ye. These danged hens be always agettin' in the way."

Gold in Australasia

A rich gold reef was recently discovered near Ardlethan, New South Wales, samples from which assayed 15 ounces gold to the ton. Another vein was found near the old Bodangora mines on property previously worked. The width of the new vein is about two feet, and an assay taken from it showed free gold ranges from 1 ounce 13 pennyweight to 2 ounces 7 pennyweight per ton.

Road Taxes Centuries Old

Autoists who feel abused at the modern highway vehicle tax may find some solace in the fact that coaches were made to pay highway taxes as far back as 1661. In that year more than 400 coaches operating in London and vicinity had to pay taxes to use the roads and the money was used to pave the London and Westminster streets.

INSTRUMENT TO TEST BRAKES OF AUTO

The United States bureau of standards, in Washington, has been making tests on auto brakes with a view to setting safe standards for their performance. In making these tests, the decelormeter, an instrument invented by the bureau of standards is used. This instrument is set on the floor of the car without being attached to it and held in position by a heavy weight and springs, when the brakes are applied the weight moves against the springs and causes a pointer to move on the dial, indicating the number of feet required to stop the car from 20 miles per hour without regard to weight of car.

RIGHT TIGHTNESS FOR AUTO BRAKES

Too Many Drivers Fail to Look Ahead and Check Speed of Car Gradually.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Any man who caught himself cutting the tires of his motor car with a file would voluntarily apply for admission to the nearest insane asylum. Yet the same fellow will lock his brakes, slide ten feet and think nothing of it.

Too many drivers confuse their tires with skates. Instead of looking ahead and checking the car slowly they are right in the middle of a jam and then slam on the brakes. And eventually an accident results. A brake cannot stand this sort of treatment forever.

No Excuse for Dragging.

There is no excuse for having brakes that drag, for dragging heats them up, wears them out unnecessarily and it absorbs a lot of the power of the engine. Brakes should not be too loose, for they will not act quickly enough to avoid danger. On the propeller shaft brake there is a nut on the brake band which can be adjusted to make the brakes just the proper tightness. The rod connecting the pedal to the brake can be turned either to the right or to the left to make it the right length for efficient use of the brake.

In fact, when in doubt about your brakes, if there are only two of them, jack up the wheels and apply the brakes far enough so that it is just possible to turn one wheel by hand. Then adjust the brake on the other wheel so that the same amount of energy is required to turn that wheel by hand.

Can Avoid Much Trouble.

Most brake trouble will be avoided by using this important part of the car properly. When coming to a stop on a straightaway, close the throttle and leave the clutch engaged until just before you come to a stop. This causes the engine to assist the brakes in bringing the car to a standstill.

So also in going down an ordinary hill, leave the clutch engaged and close down the throttle. But in going down a steep hill, or a moderate hill with a heavy load, put the gear in intermediate or low speed at the top of the hill and leave the clutch engaged. Shut off the throttle.

Use the brakes as little as possible when driving. When an emergency stop is necessary, close the throttle, leave the clutch engaged, apply the foot brake and pull, if necessary, the hand brake. But do not lock the wheels. Keep the wheels rolling to avoid skidding.

In driving a car, enjoyment can be guaranteed when the brakes are properly functioning. No automobile owner can fail to do less than give careful attention to this phase of motoring.

Ammonia Destroys Finish

There used to be a common practice of trying to brighten up the finish of the hood by a solution of ammonia. This is about the worst thing that could be done, as ammonia destroys the finish. Unfortunately the ammonia gives a little brilliance to the finish, but in the long run it ruins it. In fact, car manufacturers recommend that no car be kept in a stable, as the ammonia from the manure gradually destroys the enamel surface.

Protecting Mudguards

In making extensive engine repairs or adjustments it often happens that the mudguard or fender will be bent and otherwise marred. This may be prevented by making a cover of some heavy material, oilcloth or imitation leather of some kind, which will cover the fender from its tip to the place where it is fastened to the running board.

Mankind's Use of Metals

Gold was probably the first metal to be used by man. Metallic gold was found in the beds of streams. It was used for ornaments before any other metal was discovered. The first metal put to practical use was copper, made into knives and other implements at least 6,000 years ago.

Spare the Spare Tire

Automobile tires are wrapped in paper by the manufacturer because tire makers know that sunlight and air sap the strength of rubber. It should be protected until it actually goes on the rim for road service.

Statistics prove that a tire good for an average of 6,000 miles when it leaves the factory will lose approximately 2,000 miles of life by being carried, unprotected as a spare for one year.

A tire cover made of rubberized-coated fabric will outlast many tires. It will cost less than the 2,000 lost mileage on one unprotected spare.

Neatly covered tires look so much better hanging on the back of the machine than do bare tires. The covers are waterproof and can be washed without injury as often as the car is washed. They come in colors to match the body finish.—Motor Life.

Spring Wheel Adapted for Huge Motortrucks

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a spring wheel, the invention of W. J. Davis of Redig, S. D., says:

The invention has for its object to provide a wheel especially adapted for heavy motor vehicles, wherein resilient mechanism is arranged between the rim and the hub for cushioning the hub against the rim. An inner wheel is provided consisting of a hub, a rim, and spokes connecting the hub and the rim, and an outer auxiliary rim arranged concentric with the wheel. This rim carries a solid tire and is connected to the inner rim by a series of straight plate springs which are made fast to the inner and outer rims. The plate springs are connected by coil springs being passed through openings in the plate springs.

She Claims Kitchen Championship

Mrs. Louis M. Ferris and stove on which she has cooked 295,291 meals.

MRS. LOUIS M. FERRIS of No. 90 East Elm street, Greenwich, Conn., claims the cookery championship for one coal and wood range. This stove, of an 1876 model, has been used in cooking 295,102 meals since the early winter of 1885. Here's the way Mrs. Ferris figures it: She is the mother of five children, and on this stove she has cooked three meals a day, averaging meal service to seven people for thirty-eight and one-half years. Twenty-one (per person or individual) meals daily for a year figure 7,665 meals a year, and for thirty-eight and one-half years it reaches the phenomenal total of 295,291 meals. "And all on the same cooking stove," Mrs. Ferris exclaimed when she figured up the amazing total.

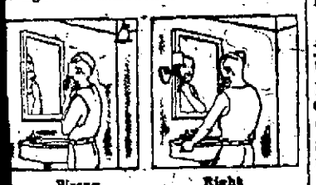
U. S. Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, created a sensation when he wrote to Chairman Butler, of the Republican National Committee, declaring Vice Presidential candidate Charles G. Dawes had wrecked the Republican campaign, and demanded that he be withdrawn from the ticket. Judge John R. Caverly, of Chicago, who sentenced Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., to prison for the murder of Robert Franks, has suffered a serious nervous breakdown. Judge Webster Thayer, of Dedham, Mass., has refused a new trial to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomo Vanzetti, sentenced to death for killing a payroll clerk and guard and stealing $15,776. Their original conviction led to bloody demonstrations against American officials in Italy and many bomb outrages. The case will go to the Supreme Court.

LESSON NO. 8

LIGHTING THE BATH ROOM

Have you ever watched your father shave? Does he try to keep shadows away by turning his face this way and that? Or can he shave comfortably and easily with a smile on his face like the man in the second picture? Shaving is really the best test of lighting in bathrooms. A man shaves each side of his face and under his chin, and if he is to see well, he needs a light on each side down low enough to light underneath the chin.



Wrong Right

Lighting the mirror in the bathroom is exactly the same problem as lighting the mirror in the bedroom, and two bracket fixtures are needed for good lighting—one at either side of the mirror at eye level or a little above. The fixtures should point upward and should have long dense milk-white shades open at the top to conceal the 50-watt "bulbs" inside.

If the bathroom is large, you may have a fixture in the center of the ceiling just like the fixture used in the kitchen. If this is properly put in and equipped with a bulb of 75-watts or more, it will furnish good general lighting all over the room on occasions when the mirror is not being used.

When sister goes to curl her hair in front of the mirror, does she find it necessary to take the bulb out of the light to connect her electric iron?

If she does, she probably does not curl her hair in the evening, because many bathrooms are lighted by only one fixture. And if your bathroom has two fixtures, and sister uses one for a curling iron, then she must twist and turn her head because she cannot see well when only one is used for lighting.

That curling iron of sister's is just one of the handy little electric appliances which should be provided with an outlet of their own—a convenience outlet 36 inches or more above the floor, so that good lighting is always ready when it is most needed.

LIGHTING THE SUN ROOM

In the sun room we usually want a ceiling fixture to give us general lighting and to flood the whole room with warm, soft light and an atmosphere of cheerfulness; we also need lighting from portable lamps for reading or sewing, or as decorative spots of light and color around the room. Do you remember the lesson which told how to light the living room? It was much the same as this, for the sun room or sun porch is really another living room in most homes.

In the sun room, however, the furniture and decorations usually require lighting fixtures which will look well with wicker and cretonne and which will make the sun room feel like a sun room even after dark.

Auxiliary of City Hospital Makes Report

Following are the reports of the secretary and treasurer of the auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital:

If the auxiliary of this hospital is considered an independent organization working for itself and by itself, then our annual report this year will be but a meager account of small things done.

But considering ourselves as we truly are, a unit of the rapidly growing institution which we serve, then our work has been a great one, for the past year has shown a splendid development in the Kingston City Hospital.

Nearly one half again as much work has been done here as in the preceding year. The hospital has now almost one hundred beds, a larger training school, a larger teaching staff, a standardized system of records and histories, and a new administrative organization. The obstetrical section has achieved a popularity which is warranted, drawing patients from all parts of Ulster county, and is often taxed to its capacity.

To the auxiliary, it is a source of great gratification that we function more in unison with the whole machine than ever before in our history.

We feel that the word "cooperation" is the keynote of our past year's work. The Board of Managers cooperate with us to the extent that they pay into our treasury a regular sum quarterly to be used in the purchase of supplies. This relieves them of minor decisions in the matter of purchases, and gives us a working capital on which we may draw to keep our store closets well filled.

In similar cooperation with the administrative department, lists of needed articles are regularly submitted to us that we may be ready for the demand, and our committee is permitted to inspect the stock on hand so that we may keep informed as to its condition.

This is of advantage to all concerned, as partly worn articles may be taken out for repair. The mending of worn pieces is a part of our work which is helpful in the highest degree, operating to the advantage of the cash account as well as the nursing staff.

Cooperation throughout the various branches of the hospital has also brought about a feeling that we are all working in a spirit of helpfulness to the same end—the improvement of the institution.

The auxiliary conducted a campaign last November which almost doubled our membership. It was organized under fifteen active members calling themselves captains, who each agreed to bring in ten new names, and to pledge five other members calling themselves lieutenants, who agreed to bring in five new names. The result raised our membership to over seven hundred. It is hoped that the women joining at that time will continue their interest in 1925 and maintain their memberships.

A card index system has been installed for the use of the treasurer in keeping records of membership dues.

The auxiliary decorated the hospital at Christmas and helped give the ward patients holiday cheer at that time and also at Thanksgiving. We also planned and carried out the graduating exercises of the training school.

Certain members interested themselves in visiting the wards regularly and bringing in comforts for the convalescents. Much credit must be given to Miss Lillian Bonesteel, who organized this work and was tireless in its accomplishment.

A number of members took home sewing for the hospital week after week, or came to the building to sew and mend. These women must feel the satisfaction of a noble work faithfully done, for that is their only reward. Publication of their names would be unnecessary and undesired by them. It is enough that those of us who know them consider their services invaluable.

In addition to the individual workers, we have found a splendid cooperation among outside philanthropic organizations who volunteered to do sewing and other work for the hospital. Among the most active of these were the Henrietta Wynkoop Guild of the First Dutch Church, the Service Club of the Second Dutch Church, the Lend-a-Hand Society of the Sahler Sanitarium, the ladies of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, and of the uptown Methodist Church, a group of ladies under the leadership of the auxiliary of the Spring Street Lutheran Church, the Red Cross workers organized by Mrs. Thomas E. Hayes, and the ladies of St. John's Auxiliary, ladies of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church, the Legion Auxiliary, part time girls of the high school.

The auxiliary has lost some good members during the year passed, members whose help we valued and whose interest we shall greatly miss, Miss Georgia Deudney, Mrs. A. C. Gates, Mrs. Robert J. Dwyer and Mrs. Nash of Hurley, Mrs. Lena Van Wert, Mrs. Jane Green.

In the year before us, we hope for a stimulation of interest among the women of Ulster county and wish that every woman who takes pride in the development of her city will feel it her duty and her privilege to join the auxiliary of one of its most progressive institutions, the Kingston City Hospital.

Elinor Chipp Is Versatile Writer

Has Produced Book of Verse, Two Novels, With Another in Preparation, Besides Magazine Stories, Poems and Plays.

It is always difficult at close range to determine the literary value of a writer, says the current issue of the Junior League Bulletin. One needs the focus of distance in order to give a just estimate of one of those fortunate beings who possess "that unusual and powerful quality at which we fling the word 'genius.'"

Elinor Chipp, one of the charter members of the Junior League of Kingston, began her literary career only a few years ago. In that time she has written short stories and poems for various magazines, one act plays, a movie adapted from one of her stories and produced by the Universal Picture Corporation, a book of verse, "The City and Other Poems" (Four Seas Company, Boston) and two novels, "Doubting Vastie," published in 1922 by Boni & Liveright in this country and by William Collins's Sons in London, and a second novel, "Many Waters," just out, of which D. Appleton & Co. are the publishers. A third novel, now in preparation, will probably be brought out in the winter.

It is in the last-named field—as a novelist—that Miss Chipp has won special distinction. She writes with a fine discernment and feeling. There is nothing cold or impersonal about her work, yet at the same time nothing hysterical or exaggerated. She paints life truthfully, not with the ugly so-called realism of many of our younger writers—there is always an idealism, an element of poetry in her books—but with the full brush of the sympathetic observer of human nature. No one who has read "Doubting Castle" can forget the vivid pictures of family life, the varied portraits of the Baldwins with their obtuseness, their conservatism and their strong underlying preoccupation with sex, nor poor little Gloria's struggles amongst them.

Of her later book, "Many Waters," the title of which comes from the Biblical quotation, "Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it," one critic has said, "It is an epic of young love, a theme that will never stale." The characters are finely drawn and handled with exquisite feeling and restraint.

In conclusion just a word of Elinor Chipp's poetry which she appears to prefer to her prose. There are, in her one little published volume so many beautiful and quotable things that one hesitates to choose where space is so limited. I cannot refrain, however, from giving one brief example wherein the lyric gift speaks for itself.

White dunes under the moon,
And a wild bird's crying,
Stretches of sand and a windy waste
Ere the night's dying.
Memories thronging thick,
Ghosts of a blue September,
And a sea wind calling night and day:
"Remember, ah! remember!"

Chemicals Carried to Sea

Thirty-two of the ninety-two elements known to exist have been found in sea water. Scientists believe that most of the others are there, and await merely the development of new methods of chemical analysis to bring them to light. These chemicals have been washed into the sea from the rocks of the land. Every year 500,000,000 tons of salts are carried to the sea by the American rivers alone.

Policemen as Call Boys

In some parts of Europe it is perfectly permissible to use the policeman on a residential beat as a call boy or alarm clock, the only restriction being that in this personal service he does not neglect his official duties. As a result quite a few policemen awaken those who have made a special request to be aroused at a certain hour.

Must Import Material

American ingenuity has devised the lightest and most durable umbrella in the world. But for all the effort of American ingenuity, the industry could not manufacture a single umbrella but for the manganese imported from Brazil and British India that goes into its steel ribs, or the silk which is mixed with cotton to make the covering, or the malacca, bamboo, mahogany or other imported woods used in the handles.

Training in Boy Leadership

Under the auspices of the Ulster County Council Boy Scouts of America, training courses in the leadership of boys will be conducted by Clarence Dumm of the Kingston High School faculty. Mr. Dumm was a former scout executive at Auburn, N. Y.

The training courses, which are free and open to men interested in work with boys, will be divided into two periods of ten courses each, with two hikes during each period. Following is the schedule of the training course for beginners.

Purpose.

The Ulster County Council, Boy Scouts of America presents this series of training courses as the practical solution for most of our juvenile problems and freely dedicates this effort in the interests of the present unorganized boyhood, and the many unselfish citizens of our community who desire to train themselves in the "Art of Boy Leadership," in a successful program of citizenship training—the "Boy Scout Program."

This series of training courses are open to all men interested in the organized leadership of boyhood.

The Program.

The training courses will deal with the theory and practical application of the Boy Scout program, and its principles and methods in the training of boyhood. All men enrolled are directed to forget for the time being the fact that they are adults and to view the program from the standpoint of a boy. The art of "thinking back" is an essential requirement of successful "boy leadership" in order first, "To gauge the mistake of immature youth," and secondly, because of mature experience, to be able to apply and direct successful remedies.

The training faculty is composed of experts in all phases of community welfare work with boys, and who voluntarily consecrating their efforts in order that the boys of today—the men of tomorrow—may have the organized chance to "Play the Game" of vital citizenship.

Training Courses.

There are two training courses as follows:

1. Scoutleaders' "Beginners' Course," beginning on Monday evening, September 29, 7:45. Open to all who are interested in the organized leadership of boys.

2. Scoutleaders' "Advanced Course," beginning on Monday evening, January 12, 7:45. This course is open to all scoutmasters who have qualified in the "Beginners' Course." Certificates of leadership training from our Scout Council will be respected and will entitle the holders to enrollment in this course.

Certificate.

At the close of the "Advanced Course" all graduates of the "Beginners and Advanced Courses" will receive the Leadership Training Certificate of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America and those who successfully pass the American Red Cross Examination will receive the First Aid Certificate of the American Red Cross.

Egg-Eating Habit Quite Difficult to Overcome

The egg-eating habit is one easily acquired but very difficult to break, once it becomes firmly established. Often the hatchet is the best remedy. However, if one takes certain measures, it may often be stopped without resorting to the extreme penalty.

One should arrange all nests so that they will be quite dark by placing under dropping boards or by having entrance from back of nest. Catch birds that show egg stains about head and file or clip front of bill till quite blunt.

Feed birds plenty of oyster shell or lime and include some animal feed like milk, meat scrap, or tankage in the ration. A craving for substances in meat often leads to the habit.

The hens should be kept busy and interested by providing deep litter to scratch in. Let birds run out of doors whenever weather conditions permit.

Made Walls of Ice

Ice as masonry has made possible the sinking of a mine shaft through 6,000 feet of swamp to reach deposits of coal in northern Belgium. Workmen were handicapped by walls of the shaft caving in until the walls were frozen into solid ice. It is expected that the 46 rich coal beds in the newly discovered field will be made accessible through the use of refrigeration systems.

WHY THIN FOLKS HAVE WEAK BLOOD

A Quick Way To Build Up

Thin folks don't go around looking pale and drawn as though the life had all gone out of you! Scientists have now found a way to put more red and strength into the blood at the same time you are putting on flesh and weight.

And here's how it is done—go to any druggist and ask for Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron in tablet form. In a day or two you'll find you are eating more, the angular hollows will begin to fill out, the blood being greatly enriched will quickly show the color of health and vigor in your face.

This sugar coated tablet containing the purest Cod Liver Oil and blood making iron is pleasant to take—no fishy nauseous taste. In order to guard against cheap imitations be sure to specify Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets. Don't forget to use the word Iron. Every druggist sells a two weeks treatment for $1.00—the most economical way to buy.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

America Leads In Telephones

The Hourly Necessity Appreciated More in the United States Than in Any Other Part of the World—Private Enterprise Leads Government Ownership.

The United States has 63 per cent. of all the telephones in the world. In proportion to population this country has ten times as many telephones as the world at large. The average American uses the telephone nine times as much as the average Englishman, and ten times as much as the average Frenchman. There are more telephones in New York city than in the whole of Great Britain and Northern Ireland; more in the city of Chicago than in all of France. In rural telephone development, America stands head and shoulders above the rest of the world.

These and other striking facts, illustrative of this country's unchallenged leadership in the telephone field, are brought out in a recent compilation of telephone statistics of all countries. This study shows that on January 1, 1923, there were 22,904,415 telephones in use throughout the world, of which 14,347,395 were in the United States. Thus the American people, who form but one-sixteenth of the earth's population, have at their service nearly two-thirds of all the telephones in existence. Europe, with four times as many people as this country, has only about two-fifths as many telephones. On the date to which these figures relate, there were 5,563,684 telephones in Europe, or but little more than one-quarter of the world's total. All other countries, including the entire Western Hemisphere outside of the United States, and Asia, Africa and Oceania as well, had only one-ninth of the total telephones in operation. Of the 1,100,161 telephones added to the wire system of the world during 1922, 620,670 represented the net growth of the telephone facilities in the United States.

United States Easily First.

In number of telephones per 100 of population, America's leadership was even more pronounced. There were, on January 1, 1923, 13.1 telephones for every 100 people in the United States, as compared with 3.5 telephones for every 100 people in Germany, 2.3 in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, 1.3 in France and 0.3 in Italy. Although Japan had the best developed telephone system of any Asiatic country, she could boast but 0.9 telephones per 100 inhabitants, even prior to the earthquake of September, 1923. It is significant that these foreign countries have all entrusted the development of their telephone systems to government ownership, whereas in the United States the telephone business has been energetically developed by private initiative. Telephone systems operated by private enterprise now include 71 per cent. of the world's total telephone; only 29 per cent. being under government ownership. Canada, with 10.4 telephones per 100 people and Denmark with 8.3 approach nearest to this country in number of telephones per 100 inhabitants.

Leads in Urban and Rural Telephones.

In absolute numbers New York city, with 1,072,632 telephones on January 1, 1923, was easily first among all the cities of the world. In fact, the American metropolis alone had more telephones than the whole of any foreign country except Germany. New York's telephone development of 18.2 telephones per 100 people far exceeded that of Berlin 9.3; Paris, 6.3; or London, 5.1. At the same date, Omaha, had 28 telephones for every 100 inhabtiants; San Francisco, 25.2; Minneapolis, 24.2; Denver, 23; and Washington, 22.8. The only important foreign city with a comparable telephone development was Stockholm with 25.4 telephones per 100 people.

In most foreign countries telephone facilities are even more restricted in the smaller communities than in the large cities. Farmers' telephones are almost unknown in Europe. Telephone development has, in many countries, been concentrated principally in the capital cities and large commercial centers. More than one-third of all the British telephones, for example, are in London; over one-third of all the French telephones are in Paris.

Americans appreciate their unique telephone facilities and use the telephone far more than do other nations. During 1922 there were 174 telephone conversations per person in the United States, as against 35 in Germany, 17 in France and 18 in Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

YOUNG JUDEANS TENDER FAREWELL TO LEADER

The Young Judaeans of Kingston held a farewell party in honor of their departing leader. Rabbi Noah Rosenthal, at the Kingston Hebrew School Tuesday evening, September 30, at 9:00 o'clock. Among those present at the banquet were Rabbi and Mrs. Rosenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kats, Dr. Levitt and Irving Lehner, president of the Y. M. H. A.

The committe in charge of arranging the banquet were Mayer Koplovits, chairman, Ruby Enstein Theodore Weiner, Anna Balzam, Ethel Bahl and Celia Stone.

After a magnificent repast, Mr. Koplovitz, who was master of ceremonies, called upon Dr. Levitt, who is to succeed Rabbi Rosenthal, to make a few remarks to the Young Judaeans. He was very enthusiastically received. Mr. Kats, being called upon next, did ample justice to Rabbi Rosenthal's accomplishments in his year and a half of leadership.

Mr. Eaton, president of the Young Judaea Club then presented Rabbi Rosenthal with a beautiful loving cup in appreciation of his services. The applause which followed showed that the full spirit of the club was behind this act. Rabbi Rosenthal then expressed his thanks and appreciation of this act and also his regret that he would no more be leader of this organization.

The Young Judaeans sincerely regret the loss of the services of so able a man and they wish him heaps of success for the future.

Arthur Kidd of 123 Franklin street, pleaded guilty to speeding 37 miles an hour Thursday, and was fined $15.

Burdett Hallenbeck of Hartford, Conn., drove to Kingston Thursday in his auto and sampled some of the wet goods offered for sale here. As a result he was found drunk in his auto which he had parked on a side street. He was fined $15, and the judge warned him that it was lucky for him that he had not been caught driving the car or the affair might have proved more serious.

Brain Operation To Cure Criminal

Eminent Surgeon Declared Train Robber's Criminal Tendencies Would Be Cured in That Way—Wife Starves Self to Raise Money.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—Preparations for a major brain operation, to be performed on Roy Gardner, notorious train robber, serving a term in Leavenworth prison, were being completed today, according to word received here by L. S. Sonney, the sheriff, who became known nationally when he arrested Gardner following a long search.

Notification was sent to Sonney by Dollie Gardner, wife of the bandit, who has been working to bring about the operation since an eminent surgeon declared Gardner could be released from his criminal tendencies by an operation.

Sonney, who has been a friend of the Gardners since the time he arrested him and who shared the reward for the capture with Mrs. Gardner, declared the patient wife is starving herself in an effort to raise money for the medical treatment of her husband.

"I have been advised by friends," Sonney said, "that Dollie is eating only two meals a day in an attempt to save money, and I guess her little six year old daughter, Jane, is doing the same."

Major League Is Still Crooked

Says Red Dooin, Former Manager of Philadelphia, Who Claims He Was Offered Bribes By Giants—Believes O'Connell and Dolan "Goats."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 3.—Asserting that bribes were offered him four times while he was manager of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, Charles S. "Red" Dooin said today he believed O'Connell and Dolan were merely "goats" for some one "higher up" in baseball's latest scandal.

"Back in 1908 I was offered $40,000 by a catcher on the New York Giants if I wouldn't play too hard," Dooin said. "The Giants were scheduled to play the Phillies at the end of the season, when New York and the Cubs were on practically even terms. The money was put in my lap while I was sitting in a train."

"In 1911 two magnates offered to make it worth my while if I would trade Pitcher Earl Moore and Outfielder Sherwood Magee to a pennant contender near the close of the season," Dooin continued.

He did not discuss the other two bribery attempts.

"I haven't seen a big league game in eight years," he added. "When one knows what is going on inside, he doesn't want to see very much of the game.'

"Crooked work is still going on in the majors and the moguls will find it if they look hard enough," Dooin declared.

Dooin commended the action of Sand in reporting the bribe offer to his superiors, but said he believed the result of the investigation should not have been made public until after the world series.

"I was overwhelmed to read of Dolan's alleged connection with the scandal," Dooin continued. "When he played third base for me, I always found him a real honest ball player. If somebody told me about ten years ago that Dolan would be mixed up in such a mess, I would have ridiculed the thought and probably would have taken a swing at the accuser.

"It is ridiculous to think that the bribery idea originated with O'Connell. I feel he was sent forward by older and wiser—but crooked heads. He was not interested enough personally to take up the matter without guidance."

After leaving the Phillies, Doin played with the Giants during 1916 and 1917. He owns a farm near here.

Cloudy Weather Predicted.

Modern Beliefs

"There are three extremely common myths," says William Lyon Phelps, in Scribner's. "Every writer except the most popular believes that his publishers do not sufficiently advertise his works; every owner of a rising house believes that his architect does not give the case sufficient personal attention; every golf player believes that his friend plays his worst game when he is a partner and his best when he is an opponent."

Fire Threatens Spartanburg

Flames Sweeping City's Tank District Compels Exodus of Residents —2,000,000 Gallons of Gasoline And Oil in Danger.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Spartanburg, S. C., Oct. 3.—Flames today swept Spartanburg's tank district, three blocks from the heart of the business section, where more than 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline and oil are stored. The fire broke out among the gasoline tanks of the Blackburn Oil Company.

Other companies with tanks in the vicinity of the fire are the Standard, National, Texas and Gulf Companies.

Shortly after the fire was discovered an exodus of residents in the neighborhood began and every available truck in the city was pressed into service to aid in the moving of household belongings to temporary quarters.

All fire fighting equipment of the city is being utilized in protecting houses and business property in the immediate neighborhood.

School has been suspended in the vicinity of the fire.

At noon today the oil tank fire which has threatened the business district of Spartanburg since early this morning was ranging as fiercely as ever with little chance of getting it under control.

City officials have appealed to Anderson and Greenville for fire apparatus to assist the Spartanburg fire department. People are moving from buildings near the blaze, constantly in fear of a big explosion. More than 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline and oil are in the tanks which now are considered lost.

Deny Coalition To Elect Bryan

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Formal denial of the charges of Chairman Butler of the Republican National Committee that a "coalition" exists between the Democrats and the La-Follette independents to elect Charles W. Bryan to the presidency was made today by LaFollette-Wheeler campaign headquarters here.

Butler made his charges in a conference with newspapermen, alleging that it was the purpose of the Democrats and Progressives to combine against President Coolidge and throw the election into Congress, where Bryan might have a chance to win the presidency.

"We admit there is a conspiracy," the Progressive statement said, "but not a conspiracy to elect Governor Bryan president.

"It is a conspiracy on the part of thirty million American voters, springing up all over the country, to put Senator Robert M. LaFollette in the White House. The conspiracy will be hatched on November fourth."

DREYFUS SAYS McGRAW SHOULD LOOK TO HIMSELF

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Pittsburgh, Oct. 3.—"Anything John McGraw has to say doesn't make a particle of difference to me. McGraw has all he can do today to take care of himself."

This was the reply of Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, when told today of the statement attributed to the manager of the New York Giants that Dreyfus's statements on the Giants' players scandal were issued because the Pirates failed to win this year's pennant.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

COVER CROP USEFUL TO INCREASE HUMUS

Cover crops in an orchard are an essential part of good orchard practice. As the maintenance of humus or organic matter in the soil is necessary to retain proper physical condition, and as manure is becoming more difficult to obtain, and can be used probably to better advantage on other parts of the farm, cover crops fill a very useful purpose in this direction alone. Crops that will make a good growth serve to increase the humus in the soil, but by selecting a leguminous crop such as clover, vetch or pea, not only may humus be added, but also it may be possible to increase the nitrogen content of the soil, thus obtaining a two-fold advantage from the cover crop.

In the colder part of the country, where well-ripened wood of the tree is necessary to insure a chance of proper wintering, it is considered necessary to utilize a cover crop in conjunction with the clean cultivation system. For this purpose the crop is sown about June 80, allowed to grow all summer and fall and plowed under the following spring. The cover crop will thus draw upon the soil for moisture and food at a time when the tree should be ripening its wood, and will also serve as a means for holding snow, thus assisting in protecting the roots of the trees from severe conditions.

The use of cover crops in connection with bush fruit plantations has not been developed to any appreciable extent, but with the growing scarcity of manure there seems to be no reason why a combination of fertilizers and cover crops could not be adopted as good practice on areas where raspberries, currants and gooseberries are being grown at proper distances. Such a combination offers many advantages, where cost of regularly applying manure is becoming prohibitive.

Following are some of the more important crops used for this purpose: Leguminous—red clover, crimson clover, summer vetch, field pea; non-leguminous—buckwheat, rape.

Fruit Growing Industry Discussed in Bulletin

A complete and comprehensive discussion of the fruit growing industry for Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee is contained in a new bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture as Department Bulletin 1189. This bulletin is the fourth of a series reporting the adaptability of fruit varieties to different regions of the United States and contains the results of a study begun in 1912 of the fruit regions of these states.

The adaptation of fruit varieties to different conditions and the response of different varieties to those different conditions is well illustrated in these regions. Many northern varieties are of little value in southern regions, while many southern varieties are without merit in northern regions. Some northern varieties ripen at the wrong time in the South to be profitable, and in many cases fail to develop satisfactorily, while others are susceptible to diseases not found in the North. Some southern varieties do not mature in the shorter season of northern sections, while the trees of others are too tender.

Good Care Is Necessary for Young Fruit Trees

Give fruit trees the proper care upon arrival from the nursery and you will be repaid for your labor.

That 75 per cent of the complaints made by buyers of nursery stock are unjust is the belief of James G. Moore, horticultural department, Wisconsin College of Agriculture. The real cause is improper handling and planting.

"Remember the trees are a living organism," reminds Moore. "When you are notified that they have arrived at the express station, call for them immediately.

"When not prepared to plant immediately, dig a trench and lay the trees in it with the tops facing south. Cover the roots with dirt. If necessary, they may be left, 'heeled-in' for some time without injury."

Horticultural Hints

Spray grapes with bordeaux mixture every three weeks.

* * *

The farm orchard just as the commercial orchard needs spraying.

* * *

Bacon rinds, rubbed on fruit trees will keep rabbits from "barking" them.

* * *

Plum and apple trees make fine ornaments for the back yard. They are even more than an ornament in the fall.

* * *

Thinning the fruit should be a regular orchard practice. The canner and packer do not want a great quantity of small fruits.

* * *

Grape vines should be pruned enough to allow room for each vine, so that plenty of air and light can get in. Many varieties grow too much to wood.

DO NOT GET 12 AND 13 WOMANLESS WEDDING MIXED

Seats for "A Womanless Wedding" were taken up rapidly Thursday afternoon when the diagram opened at the Y. M. C. A. and coupons were issued on presentation of tickets. The coupons, unfortunately, have no date, but must be used only on the date for which they are issued. Coupons numbered 12 are for Tuesday evening and those numbered 13 are for Wednesday evening. They are not interchangeable. They were issued for a given night and on presentation of a ticket for that night.

Despite this warning and the plain facts, it will be miraculous if some saphead does not demand seats on the evening for which his ticket and coupon have not been issued. If the holder of No. 13 coupons tries to get seats on No. 12 night, or vice versa, he will be out of luck, with nobody to blame but himself.

An Auto Crash.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—Industrial stocks, the active leaders on the stock market today, were unable to make much progress in the upward movement of prices, due to the flood of profit-taking and short selling.

Some of the high priced specialty stocks in which there is little outside interest lost a big slice of their recent gains. Nash Motors, at 144 was down 8 points from Thursday's close and 17 points from last week's high. But American Can, the leader of today's industrials after opening fractionally higher, sold in heavy volume between 132 and 133. Pressure against the oils also netted the bears meagre results, though Marland declined a point to 33¾.

Railroad stocks started the day with a brisk advance in some sections, but under ready selling prices soon showed irregularity: Lehigh Valley lost about 2 points at 61¼ and representative issues like Rock Island and Southern Railway were down nearly a point on the average.

High priced industrials were sold quite heavily in the fourth hour, prices declined from 2 to 6 points. Du Pont at 128½ showed a loss of 1½; Associated Dry Goods lost 3¾ at 117⅞; General Electric 3 to 255; Baldwin Locomotive 2 at 122, U. S. Steel lost a point at 107⅝ and People's Gas was down ½ to 107.

Police Launch War on Scalpers

Dearth of Tickets at Washington For Opening Game of Series Gave Speculators Opportunity—Arrest All Scalpers is Orders Issued.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Hundreds of government agents and Metropolitan police descended early this afternoon on ticket scalpers who have been reaping a rich harvest here during the last forty-eight hours in selling seats for the world series at prices far in advance of the box office rates.

Dearth of tickets at the ball park opened the way for the operations of the speculators. They were "cleaning up" until noon today, when the bureau of internal revenue and city police headquarters issued orders simultaneously for the arrest of all scalpers.

This drastic action was decided upon as the result of complaints of thousands of Washington baseball fans, who charged that no tickets for the world series were obtainable from the baseball managements, but that the scalpers had plenty at high prices.

The government will proceed against the scalpers, first under the law that they must be registered to do business and second to compel them to pay income taxes on half the amount realized above the box office price.

It was said at the treasury that only twenty ticket brokers are registered to do business in world series tickets, while several hundred speculators are selling tickets on the streets and in the hotel lobbies.

A separate campaign against the scalpers was launched by the Metropolitan police.

Chief of Detectives Grant issued orders that all persons selling tickets above the authorized box office price were to be arrested under a municipal law which makes it an offense to sell any ticket for more than price stamped upon it. The fine for each sale is $100.

The speculators were operating in temporary stands in Pennsylvania avenue haberdashery stores and soft drink parlors.

Scalpers' prices varied greatly, being based upon the principle that the rates should be as "much as the traffic would bear." Grandstand seats sold at the box office for $16.50, were quoted around $25.

The first arrest was made shortly after noon. Charles Barnett was taken into custody in his ticket agency on Pennsylvania avenue. Tickets found in the place were seized as evidence. A man who just had purchased one was taken along by the police as a witness.

A round up of all scalpers was expected before nightfall.

The announcement of the drive against the speculators caused no immediate break in prices, which ranged around $30 and $40 for $16 seats but there was a noticeable let up in the sales of the scalpers. The fans it appeared, were waiting for the prices to go down, feeling that there would be a break either tonight on in the morning a few hours before the first game.

In the meantime, thousands of reservation holders stood in line at Clark Griffith's stadium waiting for a chance to buy tickets.

Scores of women were in line and a number of them fainted as the ticket buyers surged around the box office.

Barnett, a Philadelphian, was given a quick arraignment. He gave $100 bail and was warned he would be fined $100 for every ticket he sold.

New Yorker Held As Rum Pirate

Arrested on Complaint of Sea Captain Who He Accused of Looting Ship of Whiskey.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brest, Oct. 3.—Magistrate Fournier, of the French naval court, today set $35,000 as the amount of bail for Max Jerome Phaff, of New York, who is accused of complicity in the piracy of 36,000 cases of whiskey from the French freighter Mulhouse off the American coast.

After a day spent in studying a transcript of all the testimony taken in the Phaff case, Commandant Fournier told International News Service he did not believe Phaff was a pirate chieftain, but only an ordinary smuggler.

The court has ordered Phaff's accusers to produce the logbook of the Mulhouse for the next hearing on October 9.

Phaff, it now appears, was arrested on the statement of Captain Walters. Phaff testified that Walters and Captain Samuel Ford, a Canadian skipper, looted the steamer Lutzon, of which Phaff was part owner. Phaff caused Ford's arrest.

Phaff accuses Walters of looting the Mulhouse. He asserts that Walters brought about his arrest to prevent him testifying at Captain Ford's trial at Montreal.

Phaff Was in Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 3.—Partial substantiation of Max J. Phaff's claim that he was in Halifax when the French steamer Mulhouse was looted off Rum Row by liquor pirates was found today on the register of a hotel here.

Phaff is held in Brest, France, to answer a charge of piracy on the high seas.

The hotel register here shows that M. J. Phaff of New York arrived July 1 and checked out July 3. The Mulhouse arrived at Halifax July 8, after a ten day experience with the pirates, who transferred the Mulhouse's costly cargo of high grade liquor to other craft of the rum armada.

MIDDLETOWN FOOTBALL CAPTAIN SERIOUSLY HURT

Struck in the neck by a moving swing on Wednesday afternoon during football practice at Middletown Daniel Dougherty, captain of the Middletown football high school team, suffered a fracture ofthe neck. He was immediately taken to the Thrall Hospital, where it is expected he will recover.

The accident occurred during signal practice, when Dougherty was running backward for a forward pass. Three small girls were playing on the swings in the park. One of the swings which was in motion, but not in use, struck him on the neck causing the fracture.

CHARGED WITH STEALING MONEY FROM BOATMAN

William Rowland was brought to the county jail Thursday afternoon by Police Chief Richter of Saugerties. Rowland, who is employed by the Saugerties-New York Steamboat Company, is being held on a charge of petit larceny, it being alleged that he took $34 from a fellow employe on the boat where he works. When arraigned before Police Justice Gardner at Saugerties, he entered a plea of not guilty and an adjournment was taken until October 11.

Which Proved It Right

L. D. Edie is a professor of economics at the State university, and incidentally is the author of the textbook used in his classes. He has a way of "catching up" his students, after they have made recitations. A few days ago, one of his students was as clever as he was. The usual procedure is that the professor asks a question, and after the student has answered it, the instructor says, "Now, are you sure about that?" and adds, "Isn't it thus and so," or "don't you really mean something entirely different from that?"

The student usually believes that he is wrong and "hems and haws," trying to correct his first statement, which usually is correct.

But this time a young man recited and when Mr. Edie asked, "Are you sure about that?" the student said, "I don't know whether it is right or not, but that is what you said in your book!"—Indianapolis News.

Makes Music in the Sky

One of the queerest orchestras in the world plays music up in the sky. The players are members of a flock of pigeons carrying various kinds of light air whistles attached to their tails by fine wires. Flocks of the birds flying through the air provide a unique and melodious aerial concert, says Popular Science Monthly. The originators of this unusual idea are the Chinese. The musical instruments used are of two different types—bamboo tubes and gourds with tubes attached. They are made to whistle by the rapid passage of the bird through the air.

Seeks to Close U. & D. Stations

U. & D. Railroad Applies to P. S. Commission for Consent of Discontinuance of Four Freight Agents During Certain Months.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 3.—The Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company Thursday filed an application with the public service commission asking for consent to the discontinuance of the services of freight agents at four of its stations during certain months of the year. The railroad operates between Kingston and Oneonta with branch lines from Phoenicia to Hunter and from Kaaterskill Junction to Kaaterskill.

The petition alleges that the business of the railroad is largely seasonal, depending considerably on the summer travel and freight traffic. In other months of the year business at some stations is insufficient to justify the maintenance of agents, the petition says, and declares that economic operation of the road requires that they be closed during the slack months.

It is proposed to do away with the services of an agent at Cold Brook from January 1, 1925, to May 25, 1925; at Mount Pleasant from October 15, 1924, to May 25, 1925; at Davenport Center from November 1, 1924, to May 1, 1925, and at Haines Falls from November 1 to May 25. During these months freight would continue to be shipped to and from these stations, but bills of lading would be handled at nearby stations. Ashokan would handle the business of the Cold Brook station; Phoenicia of the Mount Pleasant station, East Meredith for the Davenport Center station, and Tannersville for the Haines Falls station, the petition states.

Man's Mind Ever in Abject Grip of Fear

Primitive man began his existence on earth under conditions that caused his hair to stand on end a dozen times in the day of thrilling adventures. When he looked around him it was with an anxious, watchful eye for enemies, and an ear strained to catch the howlings of strange beasts.

It was with reluctance he surrendered his consciousness at night, for there was no security about his rude couch. He looked up at the sky with no sense of friendly aid to be sought there, but rather with craven dread of some malign intent in the strange movements of the stars and in the periodic appearance of flaming comets.

Man lived for countless ages with fear at his elbow, and the centuries of his advance in knowledge and culture have not enabled him to rid himself of the monster, says E. V. Odle in P. T.'s and Cassell's Weekly. One result of this is that the language of almost every civilization abounds with taboos and superstitions, while even a good many of the sayings of the great are colored with the emotions of fear.

Science has disposed of superstition, but it has come to understand only a very little more about the emotion of fear. It is only in his head and in his heart that man is sometimes a hero; in the pit of his stomach he is always a coward. Physiologically, the emotion of fear hits us very literally below the belt. It affects the great network of nerves situated under the diaphragm and known as the solar plexus. These nerves are closely associated with all the most vital organs and they control the very pilot upon which the human mechanism works. Hence, the "sinking feeling" that we experience in moments of fear is due to an actual relaxation of the diaphragm itself and the consequent embarrassment of the heart and the pulmonary system.

Science has also discovered that the sense of fear, when it becomes intensified, tends to produce a well-marked condition known in medical terms as a phobia. There are agroaphobia or fear in crowds; monophobia, or fright of being in a confined space; anthraphobia, or fright of society; bathophobia, or fright of things falling; siderodromophobia, or fright of railway traveling.

Tells a Pathetic Story

It is a two-inch strip of cigar-box wood, with a half-inch hole rudely whittled through it at one end, and with soiled strings of cloth attached. It occupies a place in the collection of curious things in the office of Dr. Sydney Ussher, the chaplain stationed by the Episcopal City mission at the City home on Welfare Island.

The whittled hole, Doctor Ussher explains, was once filled with a glass lens from a broken pair of spectacles, and the strings of cloth were used as ear loops. An old inmate of the institution, who had lost the use of one eye entirely and was almost blind in the other, had laboriously contrived a home-made eyeglass in order that he might not lose touch utterly with the news of the big city across the river.

"It is often necessary," said Doctor Ussher, "to help with little personal problems that the city cannot look after. The city provides good medical talent and excellent nursing care for our old folk, but the cost of eyeglasses has never been included in a municipal appropriation. Sometimes I am asked to play the part of a semi-professional oculist in the hope that the long days may be made a little less dreary for the poor people whose lives are ending here."—Washington Star.

Pampered

She was really a sweet-looking woman and she wanted something for Teddy. After she had gone through the toy stock and worn the clerk to a frazzle she admitted that she was stumped.

"You see," said she, "Teddy is three years old and it is difficult for me to know just what he would like. When he was a puppy I could buy him balls and things like that, but he does not seem to care for them any more."

And then the worm turned.

"Why don't you buy him a nice silk nightie, tied with a blue ribbon?" the clerk asked, sweetly.

But the fond mother didn't get it at all.

"Oh, he has all those things," she replied.—Argus (Seattle).

Law Fixes Teachers' Pay

Eleven states have laws definitely prohibiting discrimination between men and women teachers in the matter of salary, and some other states have by administrative action recognized the principle of "equal pay for equal work," according to information recently compiled by the United States bureau of education, says School Life. Those states which have passed prohibitory laws are California, Colorado, Maryland, Nevada, New York (for New York city), Oregon, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—Luis Angel Firpo's chances of remaining in the United States as long as he wishes brightened today, following the favorable report of Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran to the department of labor. Curran saw no reason why the Argentine fighter should be deported.

Canon Chase, who sought the fighter's deportation before the Wills match, indicated through his attorney that he would not consider the case ended. Chase charged that Firpo brought a woman to America for immoral purposes.

Barred Players Have Disappeared

Rumored That Giant Players Smuggled O'Connell Aboard Train—Wives of Banished Players Hit Hardest.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—The whereabouts of Jimmy O'Connell, suspended Giant outfielder, was a mystery today as a result of the exposure of his part in the attempt to bribe Heine Sand to throw Saturday's Giants'-Phillies game.

He was missing from his Embassy hotel apartment. About the hotel went a story that yesterday afternoon when the Giants departed for Washington, three team mates, taking pity on O'Connell, took him along in a taxicab to Pennsylvania terminal and smuggled him aboard the train.

O'Connell was very anxious to see Commissioner Landis and convince him that he was the "goat" in the bribery attempt behind which, he charged, the whole Giant team stood.

Upon the wives of O'Connell and Cozy Dolan, the Giant coach put out of baseball with him, the thumb of scandal bore heaviest today. Mrs. O'Connell still was confined to her bed after her collapse yesterday when she fainted on hearing of her husband's guilt. Mrs. Dolan, too was prostrate in bed.

At Dolan's apartment this morning it was said he was not in; that his whereabouts was not known.

McGraw's Ability Is Giants' Edge

And Is Only Reason for Walsh Picking National Team—Bench Managers Have Big Advantage Over Playing Variety—Brains and Ability Can't Beat Hitting Team.

By Davis J. Walsh.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The dash, fire and insouciance of youth versus the cold, calculating moves of mature consideration.

That is the way the world series between the Giants and John McGraw and the Senators and Stanley Harris appeals to the writer. They happen to be the great extremes of all comparisons.

Harris, a playing manager, is only 27 years old. McGraw, managing from the bench, is 53 years old.

The writer happens to favor bench managers over the playing variety. Therefore, he strings along with McGraw over Harris, regardless of the technical moves either or both may have made during the regular season. He just happens to think that a man on the bench, removed from the actual heat of the conflict, can think faster and size up opportunities to better effect than a man who is thrust into the thick of a game.

The McGraw versus Harris situation is the main reason why I think the Giants will beat the Senators.

McGraw is the master of puppets, the man who pulls the strings. No smarter, no more resourceful manipulator of baseball destinies ever lived. Harris may be a great kid manager, a man who has carried a team over one hurdle after another to a pennant in spite of his more or less tender years; yet I look for McGraw to out smart him on important issues.

When a man of this character is opposed to a play-manager, the thing becomes a parody.

In the matter of grasping the import of situations and taking advantage of them, it would appear that the man who has everything in front of him must have a better and more thorough and succinct idea of what is going on than the man who is forever involved in every mechanical move his team might make.

If you talked forever you couldn't convince the average man that Harris, a mere boy, could hope to compete with McGraw, veteran of thirty years in baseball, as a tactician.

Of course, there is nothing to prevent the Senators from emulating the Boston Braves of 1914. If a team happens to be hitting and has the inspiration with which some outfits are favored on occasions, all the brains and all the ability of the opposition will be worth nothing. You cannot beat a team that won't be beaten, and for all the writer or anyone else knows, the Senators may be that kind of a ball club.

Big Three in Action Saturday

Games Considered Practice Contests—Stiff Game Scheduled Between Nebraska and Illinois.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 3.—With the big three going into action for the first time and four games scheduled between teams of more than ordinary importance, the 1924 football season will be on in earnest tomorrow.

The biggest games on the card call for meetings between Wisnonsin and Iowa State at Madison, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Illinois at Lincoln, Nebraska, Ohio State and Purdue at Columbus, and Pittsburgh and LaFayette at Pittsburgh.

Nebraska, nemesis of Notre Dame, and Illinois, joint holder with Michigan of the western conference title, should furnish the fireworks. It is one of the heaviest games ever scheduled in the early season.

Of the big three, Harvard will get under way against Virginia at Cambridge; Yale will play North Carolina at New Haven and Princeton will take on Amherst at Princeton. The three come under the head of practice sessions.

Fish Frozen in Ice

It is said that there are authenticated cases of fishes and frogs which have survived after having been incased in solid ice. This is because cold-blooded creatures such as fish and frogs have a very low standard of heat. Their body temperature is only slightly above that of the surrounding atmosphere. However, fishes and frogs frozen in ice would not usually survive.—Pathfinder Magazine.
